DOVES AND GIANTS AGAIN: RED SOX TACKLE THE YANKS

There was a big gathering of fans at the Columbus avenue grounds to-day for the third session of the Doves with the New York Giants.

The close game of yesterday whetted the interest.

In New York the Red Sox went after the third game with the Yankees, and Lake's boys were confident of taking the odd one.

D. A. R. INSURGENTS RENEW WAR ON MRS. SCOTT

WASHINGTON, May 7.—A sharp conflict again is on between the conservative, or insurgent, and the administration factions of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and the storm will centre in the national board of the society at its June meeting. An echo of the trouble comes from the insurgents' protests which, it is understood, questions the authority exercised by Mrs. Matthew T. Scott, president-general of the society, in tendering to President Taft a part of the Continental Hall for use by the Smithsonian Institution.

MRS. HAINS' NOTES NAME ARMY MEN

"My Affinity, Malcolm P"—She Wrote to Her Husband.

FLUSHING, L. I., May 7.—A new army scandal was partially uncovered to-day in the trial of Captain Peter C. Hains, Jr., for the murder of William E. Annis, when the defence made public some of the characteristic love letters that Claudia L. Hains wrote her husband about the gay doings at Fort Hamilton in his absence.

Malcolm Peters Andruss, a first lieutenant, stationed at Fortress Monroe, was called to the stand by the prosecution to testify to the mental condition of Captain Hains after his return from the Philippines last Summer. He said that Captain Hains was sane.

Then Lawyer McIntyre sprung his surprise in the Claudia Hains letters. In one of these letters the beautiful young wife of the army officer refers to Andruss as "My affinity, Malcolm P——"

In another letter Claudia Hains refers to Lieutenant-Colonel H. O. S. Heistand and remarks with charming frankness that he "was awfully nice to me. I am crazy about him."

It was brought out that Colonel Heistand issued permission for Andruss to attend the trial and testify against Captain Hains.

Here are the graphic letters that Claudia Hains wrote:

My Dearest Husband—I have been to church this evening with my affinity, Malcolm P.—ain't it awful for your wife to go to church twice a week? I went to New York this morning and came back and did some sewing. Got seven eggs to-day. I wish you could have them, they are so good. Good night, dear. Lots of love and many kisses from all. Your loving wife,

CLAUDIA.

The only date on this letter is "Wednesday, 4th." Another letter is dated "Sat. 29th April" and reads:

Dearest Hubbie—I went to the dance last night (Gee, I am tired). We had a gorgeous time. I had the time of my life with Colonel Heisland. I tried my best to make a good impression. As I was going out of the hall and bidding him (Colonel) good-night, he pulled the best poster down and presented it to me before every one. He is such a soldier that I am doubtful. He took me around and introduced me to lots of men and was bent on my having a good time. Dr. Jarrett refused to dance with me, and I told the Colonel about it, so up he walks to the "doc" and says, "No more mileage for you."

Oh, I hate to take such easy money. Never mind. I had a good time. One man, a "cit," went crazy over me. This is not conceit. He wanted me to call him up in New York. His wife was there, too. Oh, these awful men! With lots of love. Your loving wife,

CLAUDIA.

Another letter to which Mr. McIntyre called attention was the following:

May 22.

My Dear Husband—I had a fine time last night, and if I ever gained weight with the powers that be, I tried to last night. Colonel Heisland was awfully nice to me. I am crazy about him and he has a lovely wife. The Lindlows backed out and would not go. The Andrusses, the Barrets and Dr. Jarrett and myself composed the party.

CLAUDIA.

It was while questioning Lieutenant Torney that Mr. McIntyre let loose the sensation of the case so far as the public was concerned.

"Did Colonel Heistand order you here?" he asked.

"No; he signed the order permitting me to come," said the witness.

It was to the home of Lieutenant Andruss that Mrs. Hains went on the night she and her husband parted. Andruss on the witness stand was asked by McIntyre for the defense:

"In your conversation with Cybella

Wanted, Cinderella Feet; Girls, Have You Them?

Miss Alice Dovey, of the "Stubborn Cinderella" company, who wears a No. 13½ (child's size) shoe, and photographs of the gold and silver slippers to be awarded victors in tiniest feet contest, which will uphold the reputation of Boston.

Are there any girls in Greater Boston who could wear a Cinderella slipper?

Now, don't get angry—wait a minute. Recently in New York an advertisement was inserted in the newspapers asking for girls with small feet to present themselves as candidates for employment on the stage. Nine girls with tiny feet were required. The applicants came from many of the leading cities of the country. When the nine had been selected, it was found that five were from Chicago, two from Philadelphia, one from Baltimore and one from Providence.

"I see," remarked the manager when he scanned the names and addresses of the Cinderellas. "Dust Boston is not represented. What is the matter with the city of culture?"

"All Boston girls have big feet," remarked one of his friends.

Girls, is that so? The BOSTON AMERICAN does not believe it and proposes to demonstrate the fact. With that object in view this newspaper issues a unique contest— a Cinderella contest—which will prove of special interest here at this time because of the fact that "A Stubborn Cinderella" is now being presented in Boston at the Colonial Theatre.

Three prizes are to be given to three girls with the smallest and most perfect feet.

All entrants must be sixteen years of age or over and not less than five feet in height.

From now until May 12 the BOSTON AMERICAN will receive entries for the contest. Each entrant must fill out the blank printed herewith and send either a late hour had been unable to learn, either from the Federal building here or from the Treasury Department at Washington, with whom the necklace had been confiscated.

The statement was made that the person who attempted to smuggle the necklace past the authorities had taken passage in the steerage as a "blind." The seizure is said to have been the result of cabled information from Europe.

This latest report of a big seizure by the customs agents was regarded as indicating the increased activity of the men in the department of Collector of the Port William Loeb, Jr., following his visit to Washington. This was generally believed to presage a general shakeup, but Collector Loeb to-day denied that there was to be any readjustment.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

REPORT M'GRAW IS OUT

NEW YORK, May 7.—Baseball circles here were thrown into a fever of excitement this morning by a rumor that John J. McGraw had been indefinitely suspended from the management of the Giants by Owner John T. Brush.

No verification of the rumor could be obtained, those interested refusing to discuss the matter. It is well known, however that Brush is greatly dissatisfied with the work of the Giants so far this season, and any action that he may take would not greatly surprise those most conversant with the affairs of the New York National Baseball Club.

McGraw did not accompany the team to Boston. Fred Tenney being placed in charge, while the manager remained at home nursing an injured finger. It is hinted here that the sore digit is scarcely of sufficient importance to keep the aggressive manager away from his team at a time his services are so badly needed, and the rumor of his suspension finds more ready credence on this score.

SOUTH END GROUNDS, May 7.—"Do or die!" was the motto which Big Mike posted over the home team's bench, and he said he was going to make the boys live up to it in this afternoon's conflict with those Terrible Turks from New York.

Bowerman, while he is not suffering from the grouch which attacks some managers after getting spanked as Big Mike did yesterday, still had recollections of that doubleheader and was out for the blood of the invaders to-day.

"We'll make 'em holler help so loud this afternoon that one J. Muggy will hear them over in New York and straightaway wish he was on the scene to lend a helping hand. They have two goats which were once the property of the Doves, and if we don't get back at least one of these in today's game, why Mr. Dovey doesn't need to order the pennant pole. An even break is all that's left and let me state that we're going to get that."

The Rube came to the grounds in great numbers, for it was their first chance to see the "$11,000 beauty" from the American Association, Rube Marquard, in action. The bleachers and the grandstand were crowded when Umpire Johnstone said the word which started the third Giant-Dove contest.

The Rube pitched a fine game at the beginning of the season and was never in danger of being beaten and McGraw says that he has the real find of many seasons and believes he made a good bargain when he paid that big sum for his contract.

"HAUNTED BARN" CULPRITS IN COURT

"The haunted barn" in Waltham was destroyed by fire on Sunday last, and to-day the police arraigned Joseph Smith and Thomas Cunningham before Judge E. P. Lee in the District Court in that city on the charge of burning a building with malicious intent. Neither prisoner is fifteen years old, and when Arthur T. Lyman, president of the Boston Manufacturing Company, who owned the landmark, told the court he did not wish the lads severely punished the complaint was charged to read "destroying property without malicious intent," and the prisoners were placed on probation for three months. The property loss sustained by Mr. Lyman is estimated at $1,500. The barn was filled with hay, but sheltered no livestock.

DOUBLE OF M'CALL HELD AS PRISONER

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 7.—George F. Dixon, who says he comes from Northfield, and who, the police say, is the double of Congressman McCall, was arrested here for not paying a bill of $62 at the New Manchester Hotel. Dixon posed as a wealthy man of real estate. His all but purchased two estates aggregating $30,000. When arrested he only had $2 in his pocket.

KING SETS NEW STYLE IN CREASES

PARIS, May 7.—Frenchmen, who regard King Edward as the best-dressed man in Europe, have noticed since His Majesty has been in Paris incognito, that he wears his trousers creased down the side instead of down the front.

BABY ESCAPES AS TRAIN KILLS MOTHER

OLD ORCHARD, Me., May 7.—While pushing her baby in its carriage along the tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad between Union avenue and Atlantic avenue crossings, Mrs. William Snow, aged forty years, was struck and killed by a train while the infant, although hurled through the air for several feet, received but a few minor bumps and bruises.

NEW YORK, May 7.—"Another one to-day," is the slogan the Red Sox carried to battle this afternoon, when they met the Yankees in the second contest of the series. Flushed with the success of a hard, uphill victory, Fred Lake's band of Boston players are determined to stand tie with New York at the close of the contest to-day, and then fight it out with them in the next game to see which team will go after the runaway Tigers.

The sting of the defeat of the day before is wiped out, and the Boston boys feel that Stallings has sent the best he has in the twirling line against them, and that it will be easier sledding in the remaining games. Manager Lake said this morning:

"We showed them a little baseball yesterday, and we will show them some more to-day. We are headed for the pennant, so watch us. We have used up the best they have in the way of pitchers, and unless luck breaks very badly against us we will win out to-day. They are welcome to that first game, but what we want is the next two, and I will not feel very well satisfied unless we get the long end of the series.

"I expect to send Charley Chech in against them this afternoon, and I think they will find the Westerner will be a nut they are unable to crack. However the way the boys warm up just before the game may cause me to change my mind. We have plenty of pitchers, and they are all working well just now, so I am not worrying about that end of the game."

BOSTON FISHING SCHOONER ASHORE

News was received here to-day that the Boston fishing schooner Raymah, which sailed from Y'mouth three weeks ago, went ashore last night two miles west of West Island, one of the Madelines, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and is in danger of going to pieces. Only meagre news was conveyed in the dispatch, apprising friends of the crew in Boston and Gloucester of the schooner's plight. The Raymah is commanded by Captain Felix Hogan, and carried a crew of eighteen, most of them from Boston, but some from Gloucester. The Raymah was a staunch vessel engaged in the business of salt shacking, her catches of cod and haddock being duly boarded and marketed in Gloucester and Boston.

BOY KIDNAPPED BY PAIR IN AUTO

STAMFORD, Ct., May 7.—The five-year-old son of William McGreevey, Taylor street was kidnapped to-day by a man and woman in a motor car. The woman wore a veil and the man a false mustache.

McGreevey thinks the woman was his wife, a former Stamford woman, whose name was Julia Tunkey. They have been living apart since January, and his wife has been trying continually to get possession of the child.

The woman now lives in New York.

PEEVISH GREASER CHALLENGES WIFE

VERA CRUZ, Mex., May 7.—Because his wife reproached him for wasting his time, Juan Rivera has published a challenge to her to fight a duel. He spends his time, it is stated, reading romantic novels, and has challenged several persons to duels on the slightest pretext.

BOY POINTS TO MRS. BOYLE AS KIDNAPPER

MERCER, Pa., May 7.—Protected by an armed guard, Mrs. Helen Boyle was taken into court to-day for trial and was positively identified by Willie Whitla as one of his kidnappers. The boy told of being taken to Cleveland where he met "Mrs. Jones" at a house, Boyle, who was posing as "Jones," said the woman was another "Jones."

The boy described how "Mrs. Jones" was dressed and identified a nurse's outfit as being that which Mrs. Jones wore while he was in the house in Cleveland. He said "Mrs. Jones" had spots all over her face. She told if anyone asked her age to say she was forty-four years old, and to tell his father and mother, and no one else, that she was a very large woman.

He identified Mrs. Boyle as being the woman whom he knew in Cleveland as "Mrs. Jones."

Attorney Cochran offered in evidence exhibit A, which was the note Boyle had written for the boy to show the street car conductor, instructing the latter to let the boy off at the Hollenden Hotel in Cleveland.

Attorney Miller, in cross-examination, put only one question to the lad:

"Did only 'Jones' go with you nearly up to the car?"

"Only Mr. Jones went with me," the witness replied. "Mrs. Jones' remained at home."

Mrs. Boyle smiled at the jurors as she entered the courtroom. She seemed to be nervous, but brought all the wiles of a woman into play. That an armed guard was needed to prevent another attack by a mob of women did not appear to worry her. The courtroom was crowded with women.

THE MODERN DANCE OF DEATH is shown in sensational new paintings by Max Klinger in next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

HOW MORSE LOST THIRTY MILLIONS

NEW YORK, May 7.—His own story, which might be entitled "What becomes of my $30,000,000," as told by Charles W. Morse, the deposed ice king, who is in the Tombs under a fifteen-year sentence, is revealed in the minutes of the examination of Mr. Morse on April 30 in the supplementary proceedings upon a judgment of $171,275 obtained by Edward C. Jones. The money went to pay his debts. Mr. Morse listed some astounding facts. For instance:

He owns no real estate.

He owns no stocks or bonds.

He has resigned from all the companies of which he was interested.

He is broke, and cheerfully admits it.

He never kept books on his financial transactions.

Mr. Morse's biggest creditor was Mr. Borrelid, the big millionaire and operator of Pennsylvania, to whom he owed $2,340,000.

UNVEIL LONGFELLOW STATUE AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 7.—A statue to the memory of Longfellow was unveiled this afternoon in the presence of a distinguished gathering. It is the first to be erected to any American man of letters at the capital. Chief Justice Fuller presided at the exercises. Bishop Mackey-Smith, General A. W. Greely, U. S. A., and Dr. Hamilton Wright Mabie also spoke.

WORLD RACE CANDIDATES HUSTLE TO GAIN FAME IN TOUR CONTEST

READ THIS!

The Around-the-World Department offices will be open until midnight to-morrow to receive late comers with their subscriptions for the gold prizes which close at that time, and also to receive late nominees.

Nominations positively close at midnight to-morrow. The winners of the magnificent Tour Prizes offered free by the BOSTON AMERICAN will be selected from the list of properly qualified nominees only. Get into that list.

FORWARD, boys and girls, forward! Win one of the gold prizes this week, then win one of the BOSTON AMERICAN World's Tour Prizes. Trips to Europe or one of the American Tours. The boys and girls who win these trips must WORK and always look forward. Let FORWARD be your watchword.

The splendid value and attractiveness of the travel tours offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN are being more fully appreciated by the readers and contestants every day. This has been demonstrated by the rush of subscriptions during the last week. The parents are now thoroughly aroused, and scores of grown-ups have called this week to talk over the contest with the Around-the-World Editor.

Parents Interested.

All parents are now anxious to get their boys and girls high up in the vote standing before the publication of the list showing the standing of the contestants. They are giving every encouragement to the boys and girls to work hard to win, fully realizing the magnificence of the offer.

The nominations close at midnight to-morrow. Those who enter to-day or to-morrow have just as good a chance of winning one of these grand offers as those who have been in from the start. The subscription plan of voting equalizes all differences. All that the situation demands is WORK.

The Around-the-World Department will be open until midnight Saturday to receive nominations and subscriptions.

Remember that to-morrow night, at midnight, the week's Gold Prize offer closes now by the way the subscriptions are piling in it looks as though it will be even a busier night than last Saturday.

Brace up, boys and girls. Now is your chance to win one of the gold prizes. They are easy to get. All you want is a little confidence in yourself and a little appeal to your friends, and there your are, right on top! Nothing could be more simple. Go after your friends like little business men and business women and see how it will develop your ability. Just try this plan. You'll soon see the truth of the assertion.

Don't Hold Back.

Remember that nothing is gained by holding back your subscriptions and the boys and girls who will take the lead and keep it are the ones who turn in their subscriptions from day to day. It is not a difficult matter to get into a leading position but it is a hard task to remain in the front, with the other fellows piling up behind you. If you get busy this week—to-day—you can get up among the leaders and then others will have to work harder to keep up with you.

Come on, boys and girls, let the Around-the-World Editor have your ideas. The BOSTON AMERICAN is now figuring on Your best route. Write your ideas upon this important matter. We want to beat out these teams from New York, Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles. They are figuring this route down to a fine basis. They intend to set such a low mark that we cannot possibly outdo them. What do you say? One boy has written that the route can be covered in forty-five days. Do you think so? Write in your ideas at once. And do not forget that the subscriptions count. Work for them. Dig for them. You'll win.

Music will be furnished by the Irving Music Company, and the soloists will be accompanied by Maurice Daniels, the composer of the following songs, which will be sung during the performance: "Heroes That We Know," Alfred J. Capron; "When the Leaves Are Turned to Golden," Charles Hay, and "Like and the Rose," Edw. W. Loudon.

Up-to-date stereopticon slides and moving pictures will be used and you will get a fixed idea of the different countries through which the winners will travel. You will gain knowledge it would be impossible to gather from your school books.

MRS. SHAW TO SACRIFICE SON FOR MARBLE

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., May 7.—Mrs. Nettie Shaw will sacrifice the love of a mother for her only child to remain by the side of Marble, the family chauffeur, with whom she eloped from Boston two years ago. This declaration marked the ending of the habeas corpus proceedings here for the possession of eleven-year-old Eldredge Shaw.

Mrs. Shaw will not return home with her father, H. Fisher Eldredge, the millionaire brewer of Portsmouth, N. H. The famous society belle of Brookline, Mass., was disinclined to discuss the situation in detail. She made it clear, however, that she will mass her future home in this city.

After a two hours' hearing Judge Crow gave the child into the custody of the father. James F. Shaw, State Senator of Massachusetts, who was represented in court by Attorney Lewis H. Smith of Fresno. The court made the order only after a lengthy debate, the judge taking a stand against both Smith and the attorney for Mrs. Shaw and Eldredge.

Father-in-Law Scores Shaw.

"It was the opinion of the court that the parents of a child should both be present in court when possession of an only child is to be settled," Judge Crow said, and thus insisted that Senator Shaw be brought here to give testimony. Both attorneys came into court after a long conference in the Hotel Potter with Mrs. Shaw and her father.

Shaw's attorney communicated by wire with the Massachusetts politician and went into court prepared to oppose to the last the naming of Eldredge as the boy's guardian.

A hint of what may come when divorce proceedings are begun in Massachusetts was given when the court placed Eldredge on the stand to give his reasons why the child should be given into his keeping. In reply to the court's inquiry as to Shaw's standing in the community Eldredge replied: "Well, he has some few friends."

To Bring Boy East.

The judge repeated his question, whereupon Eldredge, in a voice almost unintelligible to those sitting within a few feet of him, said Shaw's conduct was such that his son should not be allowed in his care. Furthermore, the wealthy brewer said, the railway company with which Shaw is connected, in the hands of a receiver, and Shaw has little or no visible means of support; that he is living with his people, who are not wealthy. Further, Shaw is not president of the concern, but is a railroad contractor, Eldredge testified.

All during the hearing Mrs. Shaw sat with her son by her side, apparently unconcerned by the proceedings which would take from her her only child. Only once did she exhibit signs of real interest and that was when Eldredge testified regarding the conduct of Shaw. Her features relaxed and she smiled as Eldredge came to this testimony. When the court's decision was made known she appeared apparently indifferent.

Basing his decision on California statutes, Judge Crow said the proper person to care for a male child in any case where the conduct of the mother was in question was the father. The boy is now in Eldredge's charge, and will be taken to Boston in a day or two.

After a few days' rest here Eldredge will depart for Boston, where the boy will be turned over to Senator Shaw. The understanding by the court is that the child is to be placed in a boarding school until the Eastern courts decide whether the father or mother is entitled to his custody.

'SUNSHINE BABY' CENTRE OF LYNN COURT CONTEST

Five-year-old Bessie Smith.

Declaring that they will fight to the bitter end to secure possession of their five-year-old daughter, Bessie, whom Justice Braley of the Supreme Court has decreed must remain in the custody of Mrs. Vincent W. Gregg, head resident of the Lynn Neighborhood House, Mr. and Mrs. William S. Smith of Neptune street, West Lynn to-day engaged counsel to press their case in the courts.

The girl over whom the contest is being waged has been in charge of Mrs. Gregg for nearly two years. The probate court in Essex County decided that the child should remain in the custody of Mrs. Gregg, the court ruling at that time that the parents were not the proper persons to look after the girl.

Mrs. George Dyson, an aunt, who lives within a stone's throw of the Neighborhood House, at No. 58 Neptune street, petitioned the Supreme Court to set aside the finding of the Probate Court and give her the custody of little Bessie. Justice Braley sustained the lower court decision.

Because it is feared that an attempt may be made to kidnap the girl, Bessie is not allowed to leave the house without a guard. Mrs. Gregg declares that the threats she has received are sufficient for an appeal to the police to protect her on the streets. She also says that she is in fear of harm.

MACKEREL 65 CENTS EACH.

NEWPORT, R. I., May 7.—The largest mackerel catch of the season was brought into port and sold for sixty-five cents each. Seven barrels were caught. The nets were set in the vicinity of Brenton's Reef.

WINS BATTLE FOR HER CHILD

Happiness reigns in the home of Mrs. Mary Milligan at No. 2,440 Washington street because her little daughter Irene is now with her. The pretty little four-year-old child came from Galway, Ireland, on an ocean liner, after being parted from her mother many months.

Her father sent money to Galway to have little Irene come back to Boston. An uncle came with her. Mrs. Milligan, who does not live with her husband, got the news of the departure from Ireland. She was at the pier when the steamship arrived and would not consent to letting her husband's relatives take Irene into their custody.

As the girl was born in this country it was a matter that officials could not settle. After Irene had been detained over night at the Immigration station she was turned over to her mother.

To a BOSTON AMERICAN reporter the mother said:

"I had not seen Irene since last Summer when I left her with relatives in Ireland. This Winter I was ill and in a hospital. Since coming out I have not seen my husband. A. J. Milligan, and I had intended to ask the BOSTON AMERICAN to try to locate him.

"I feel that when he sees this story and learns that little Irene is near he will come to me at once and I am sure we shall be glad to see him.

"The dispute at the immigration office was about who should gain possession of little Irene, her father's folks, or myself. They gave her to her mother as a matter of course, but a mother should have charge of a girl like Irene. Why, when she saw me she ran and put her arms around my neck and cried and hugged and seemed never to want to be separated from me. I pray that we may never be separated again. I have nothing but kind feeling toward her father and perhaps when he learns about this he will join us and we shall all be happy again."

FRANCE FEARS BIG LABOR WAR

PARIS, May 7.—The famous P. T. T., that is, the Posts, Telegraphs and Telephone Employees Association, has thrown down the gage of battle to the government by transforming itself into a syndicate, or union, under the law of 1884, thus placing the association on the same footing with workmen's unions, with the right to strike against the State employers, as the workmen have the privilege of doing against private employers.

This defiance, which is nothing short of open revolt, came as a sudden and sensational sequel of Premier Clemenceau's failure to-day to receive a deputation of postal employes, who called to present demands for the redemption of promises which they claim the government had made when the recent strike was declared off.

SIEGEL EMPLOYES GIVE MAY PARTY

Today the employes of the Henry Siegel Company are congratulating themselves on the great social and financial success of the first May party which was held last night to swell the fund for the purchase of a home where the employes may spend their Summer vacations and the sick find relief. The party was held in Intercolonial Hall, Dudley street, Roxbury. The firm presented the Employes' Mutual Benefit Association with a substantial check to be added to the fund. The announcement that the Boston Store of the Henry Siegel Company had made a greater gain than any other store in the chain owned by the firm added not a little to the enjoyment of the May party. A special concert by employes of the firm was followed by dancing.

EVA TANGUAY IS TO MARRY

NEW YORK, May 7.—Eva Tanguay, one of the best-known and highest-salaried stars in vaudeville, is to marry. The happy man is Edward Darling, private secretary to E. F. Albee, general manager of the United Booking Offices. Miss Tanguay made the announcement to-day, and Mr. Darling confirmed the fact.

According to Miss Tanguay, the marriage will take place in this city in about a month, or after the comedienne has finished her theatrical engagements over the Percy Williams circuit.

The romance is only three years old. Miss Tanguay and Mr. Darling met for the first time in the St. James Building then, where the comedienne came to consult her vaudeville agents about an engagement. She was not so well known then as she is to-day and Mr. Darling assisted her in many ways.

"Mr. Darling and myself have been engaged for over a year," said Miss Tanguay, "except for obvious reasons we decided to keep it a secret. Now that the date of our marriage has been set, there is no earthly reason why the fact should not be given to the public.

"Mr. Darling is an estimable and clever young man. What success I have achieved in my profession I certainly owe to his indefatigable efforts in my behalf. I have no intention of retiring from the stage. I love vaudeville and everybody connected with it too much for that."

The bridegroom-to-be, who has been connected with the United Booking Offices for five years, comes originally from Waterbury, Ct.

LODGE HUNTS LOST SAILORS

PROVINCETOWN, May 7.—In answer to his telegram to Senator Henry Cabot Lodge yesterday, asking him to take up to the State Department the report that Captain Calin Stephenson, his son and crew of twelve men of the Provincetown whaling schooner Carrie D. Knowles had been locked in a dungeon in Venezuela for the past five years, the following reply was received by wire to-day:

Secretary J. F. Shaw, Provincetown, Mass., Board of Trade:

Have taken the matter up with the State Department, and our Consul will be requested by cable to-morrow to look into the report in reference to schooner Carrie D. Knowles and to reply at once.

HENRY CABOT LODGE.

This means that a cable is to be sent to the United States Consul-General at Venezuela to-day, and that immediate action will begin to look up the American search alleged to be incarcerated there.

The first known of the imprisonment of the American crew came from Elisha Paine, who told the story to Captain H. W. Higgins of the steamer Gloucester, who succeeded to the ownership of the sailing schooner, to the ownership of which Mrs. Mildred Knowles, wife of First Mate Martin of the missing schooner, asked the local Board of Trade to investigate the case.

The Knowles sailed from here in 1904 and has not been heard from since. According to Paine's story the vessel was seized by orders of Cipriano Castro, then President of Venezuela, and the officers and crew were cast into prison, where they are supposed to be confined to-day.

ALFRED HENRY LEWIS presents another of his inimitable cloak room tales in next SUNDAY'S BOSTON AMERICAN.

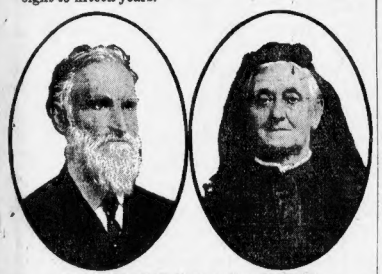
Temperance Advocates Extol the Elixir of Life

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Craig, well-known temperance advocates and prominent in the home life of Bristol, Tenn., write warm words of praise of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, the world's greatest tonic and body builder. They recommend it to the old and young, as they believe, taken as prescribed, "it will prolong life eight to fifteen years."



MR. AND MRS. ROBERT CRAIG. EACH 74 YEARS OLD.

"My wife and I each are over 74 years of age and have been so much benefited by, and have such faith in, the uniform purity and valuable medical qualities of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, that we send you this statement along with our photos.

"About eight years ago I had disease of the heart, dropsy and catarrh. My physicians cured the dropsy and helped the heart trouble greatly, then advised me to use pure whiskey in one tablespoon dose twice a day. We failed to obtain as pure whiskey anywhere to suit my case as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, in which we have great confidence, and from our experience with it thus far believe, if used in small doses daily, it will prolong the life of old people eight to fifteen years by helping to keep the smallest blood vessels clearer of ossific deposits on their sides that prevent the free flow of blood to every part of the body. The deposits from smoke in a pipe will illustrate this theory in part.

"In Noah's time people drank pure grape wine, used a simple diet, and lived to be very old.

"We are opposed to intemperance, and are in favor of such laws as will put intoxicating drinks out of the reach of those who damage themselves and others by such drinks, when they do not need them for medical use.

"Only such makers of honest reputation as Duffy should supply this country with pure malt whiskey for medical use only."—Mr. Robert Craig, Mrs. M. L. Craig, Bristol, Tenn.

Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old feel young and keeps the young strong.

CAUTION—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold in sealed bottles only—never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark the "Old Chemist" on the label and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Consulting Physician, Duffy Malt Whiskey Co., Rochester, N. Y., for an illustrated medical booklet and free advice.

CAPT. HAINS IS SANE, SAY MORE STATE WITNESSES

Hains did you ever say you did not see how a woman and the mother of three children could do such a thing?" asked Mr. McIntyre.

"Yes, sir," replied the witness. "I said this in a letter." The letter, given over later by the defense, but not included in the testimony, follows:

"My Dear Captain:—I think that the advice I gave Mrs. Hains was good, and my only hope is she will follow it. I have never sympathized with her in her wrongful act, for it is beyond me to comprehend why a woman with three children could do such a thing. Remembering the passage in the Bible which says 'Let him that hath no sin cast the first stone,' I tried to cheer the poor woman up and advised her to turn over a new leaf and make amends for the past by living a Christian life.

Merely Acting Indiscreet.

"You will remember that I told you at Hamilton I talked to Mrs. Hains on several occasions concerning the way she was carrying on, never dreaming she was doing anything wrong, but merely acting in an indiscreet manner.

"Any interest I have taken in the matter has been owing to our friendship. I am sincerely sorry and surprised you have taken the view you have concerning my action, and I want to forcibly impress upon you the fact that I bear you no malice and desire to be of assistance to you in any way I can. I have always taken sides, for you are both friends of mine."

ANOTHER DOCTOR TESTIFIES HAINS WAS RATIONAL

FLUSHING, N. Y., May 7.—Dr. Horace C. Houghton was called to the stand today when the Hains trial was resumed. Dr. Houghton was the first physician to reach the side of William E. Annis after he was shot. He insisted that Captain Hains on the day of the murder "walked unfeelingly and firmly, and otherwise appeared rational."

Charles H. Roberts, another re-called witness, also described Captain Hains's appearance on the floor on the day of the shooting.

"He paced back and forward at a moderate gait, a little faster than a normal walk between two upturned boxes," said the witness. "His eyes had a serious look. He was wearing glasses. He kept his hands at his sides. At the Flushing police station the prisoner gave his name as Captain Peter C. Hains, and told the policeman on the desk that he lived at Fort Hancock, and when asked whether he was married, had hesitated a moment and then answered: 'I am getting a divorce from my wife.'"

His speech and actions in my opinion were perfectly normal. Cross-examined the witness admitted that Captain Hains had a "steady gaze" of the eyes.

Merrill L. Downs of Flushing, a witness at the last trial and a member of the Bayside Yacht Club, said he had seen Captain Hains on the float on the day of the shooting.

The defendant had said to him, when he (the witness) asked who had done the shooting, "I am the man. I did the shooting."

The defendant had further identified himself to the witness by saying: "I am Captain Hains of the U. S. Army."

Captain Hains, the witness also recalled, had said to his brother Theodore, "Captain Haigs is a gentleman's club, you had better hand over the gun." At no time in the witness's opinion, did the defendant act in any but a rational manner.

Eugene A. Fallon of the New York police force told of being in the Flushing station house when Captain and Thornton Hains were brought there under arrest. He corroborated the testimony of Edward Roberts as to what the defendant had said to the question of the lieutenant of the police. Captain Haigs walked and looked normal, he declared. He told also of being asked by Captain Hains in his cell for a piece of paper. The defendant, after he got the paper, asked the witness if he would send a message to his father for him. The witness identified the message, which was read:

"Have shot Annis. Come to Flushing police station. Peter."

At 11:30 Assistant District-Attorney Herherington began reading the hypothetical question to Dr. Charles G. Brink, alienist for the State, who was then on the witness stand.

At the conclusion of the hypothetical question, Dr. Brink was asked in his belief the words and actions of the man described in the question were rational or irrational.

"Rational," he replied.

"Was he sane or insane at the time he shot W. E. Annis."

"Sane."

Dr. Brink was then asked to take into consideration all the facts presented in the hypothetical questions, both for the defense and State and say from what Captain Hains suffered on Aug. 15.

"I do not believe he was suffering from any mental trouble. I think his act was that of a normal man," he replied.

MACVEAGH IS CALLED CHEAT

MADISON, Wis., May 7.—Speaker Bannott, in a speech before the Wisconsin Assembly advocating better pure food laws, charged the Franklin MacVeagh Company, of which the present Secretary of the Treasury is the head, with adulterating food products.

Picking up a bottle of lemon extract sold and sold by the MacVeagh Company, the Speaker charged it did not contain a drop of lemon, but consisted almost entirely of wood alcohol.

A bottle of raspberry jam, Speaker Bannott said, was composed mostly of glucose and hay seed. A bottle of port wine extract, Speaker Bannott said was made of this was labeled "Guaranteed under the Franklin MacVeagh, the speaker said.

"The present Secretary of the United States Treasury is a man of financial ability, because he has succeeded in making millions by cheating the American people with adulterated foods. For this reason he was chosen to guard the money of the country and incidentally overrule the rulings of the National Food Commissioner."

EXPENSES CUT BY MRS. TAFT

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President and Mrs. Taft are going on the principle that if the government is to economize, economy ought to begin at home. Therefore, the running expenses of the White House are being cut down. Since March 4 savings and curtailments have been effected in various directions about the executive mansion.

Mrs. Taft is responsible in a large measure for the savings that have been brought about. For one thing, when the new administration took possession of the White House it was found that there were nine laundresses. This number has been reduced to three. Formerly there was an engineer, an assistant engineer and a plumber about the establishment; one man is now retained to do any engineering work or plumbing work that is necessary.

Under the Roosevelt regime, Pinkney, the colored servant, was an important functionary about the establishment. Now a steward is no longer kept. Pinkney has gone on the government rolls as a messenger. Mrs. Taft has obtained a first-class housekeeper, Miss Jefferson. The management of the White House in large measure rests with Miss Jefferson, who attends to the buying. Mrs. Rosseveldt used to do much of the buying for the establishment herself.

175 HURT AT TRACK MEET

SEATTLE, Wash., May 7.—From 150 to 175 people were injured, some beyond a doubt fatally, others seriously, and all slightly hurt or severely shaken up, through the giving way of an iron guard rail in the balcony of the national guard armory on Western avenue while 3,000 spectators were assembled on the occasion of the indoor track and field championships of the Pacific Northwest Association of the Amateur Union.

The accident came at the exciting finish of the ten-mile race. As the contestants crossed the line near the centre of the armory, the great crowd surged to the front of the balcony and as near the finish line as possible. At the second Jackson, the police, passed the line the iron guard rail, reaching 300 feet along the east side of the structure, gave way for its full length and from 200 to 250 people were plunged head-long a distance of sixteen feet down to a hard oak floor. They were in an instant turned to an indescribable mass of suffering and mounting humanity. Skulls were crushed, arms and legs broken by the score, internal injuries sustained. Men, women and children were carried up and down and from them as they piled three or four deep upon each other, shrieking, heart-rending cries of distress rang through the building.

NEW RIKER-JAYNES DRUG STORE OPENED

Many subway passengers are to-day congratulating themselves because a new Riker-Jaynes drug store has been opened on Tremont street, just opposite the Park street station. The new store is most conveniently situated for the thousands of persons who travel either north or south from Park street to their homes. The new store, which is within a door of Winter street, is equipped with a fine soda fountain and all of the other distinctive features of the Riker-Jaynes drug stores.

The establishment is the twenty-second Riker-Jaynes drug store. There are now nine stores in Boston, seven in New York and six in Brooklyn. All of this great chain of stores are owned and operated by the William B. Riker & Son Company of New York. There are no intermediate dealers between the Riker-Jaynes stores and their customers, and these profits are done away with.

BROOKLYN BRIDE IS 15, GROOM 21

BROCKTON, May 7.—Perley Wilson Beicher, aged eighteen, and Miss Hazel Merrill Sampson, aged fifteen, were married here after authorization had been secured from Judge Chamberlain of the Probate Court.

The youthful brids and groom are accomplished pianists and it was music which brought about their first meeting when both were living in Abington last Summer. The girl lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Alice Sampson of that town, who is in feeble health. Solicitous that there should be some one to look after the girl after her death, the grandmother suggested the early marriage.

A romance which began in the Boston City Hospital culminated in the marriage of Dr. Harold W. Dana, a member of the Somerset and University clubs, and Miss Gertrude V. Quinn of Dover, N. H., at St. Columbkille's Church, Brighton.

The bride is a sister of Frank W. Quinn of Brighton, an inspector in the immigration service, and was a nurse at the City Hospital when Dr. Dana was on the hospital staff. The Rev. Joseph V. Tracy, pastor of the church, officiated.

The groom is a graduate of Harvard in the class of 1900 and of the Harvard Medical School in the class of 1905. After graduation, he became a member of the staff of the Boston City Hospital and remained there until about eight months ago, when he began practice on Brimmer street.

INSISTS HE SET FIRE; HELD IN $3,000

NEWBURYPORT, May 7.—After insisting in Newburyport District court to-day that he was the man who set fire to the Second Congregational Church of West Newbury on April 24, and after demonstrating to Judge Simpson that he could conceal a quart bottle of kerosene in his trousers pocket, Charles E. Marshall of West Newbury was held in $3,000 bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of arson. He surrendered to the police last night.

LINER LEAKING; 1,000 ABOARD

ST. JOHNS, N. F., May 7.—The steamer Lake Champlain, bound from Liverpool for Montreal, put in here to-day in a leaking condition.

The steamer encountered heavy ice off Cape Race and had a hole stove in her bow. There are about one thousand passengers on board.

The vessel filled so rapidly that it was considered unsafe to proceed for her destination, and it was decided to dock here for temporary repairs.

The Lake Champlain left Liverpool on April 28, in command of Captain Webster.

She is a steamer of 4,035 tons net and is owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. She was built at Glasgow in 1900.

SUED BY GIRL; SAYS SHE DID THE PROPOSING

William H. Phinney, a well-known Boston man, who is being sued for $20,000 by Miss Ada Howard, a Worcester show girl, for alleged breach of promise to marry, declares the story of his proposal to Miss Howard is false. "She asked me to marry her last March," he said when interviewed about the suit. "I got tired of her, and that was the last time I saw her."

Miss Howard, an attractive young woman, has been on the stage for several years, appearing in vaudeville and in musical comedies.

She says she met Mr. Phinney for the first time about five years ago at Hampton Beach. His wife was alive at that time, but she died about a year ago. The past Winter Miss Howard has been living on Massachusetts avenue, where she visited Mr. Phinney renewed his friendship with her.

She alleges that the friendship was made manifest by dinner parties, theatre parties and rides behind Mr. Phinney's fast horses, one of which is considered to be among the best on the Boston speedway. There were also visits to Boston photograph galleries and, she says, Mr. Phinney and she, hand in hand, slugly, Miss Howard asserts.

The friendship late in the Winter developed into something stronger, says Miss Howard, and she alleges that on January 15 Mr. Phinney asked her to be his wife, and she consented.

WOMAN'S GRIT IN TRAGEDY TO SAVE HER LIFE

Because of her wonderful grit Mrs. Emma Gleason, wife of Thomas H. Gleason of Arlington, whose throat was cut in a lonely wood lot yesterday by Thomas H. Lynch, a neighbor, who afterwards blew off his head with a shotgun, is likely to recover.

If she wins her battle for life, say the physicians, it will be due in large measure to the indomitable will power of this frail women. How, after her throat had been cut and her windpipe partially severed, she dragged herself from the woods, down the steep hill to the home of the Gateys on the Crosby estate, the doctors frankly state is beyond their power to explain.

With firm hand, and clear, legible penmanship she wrote on the large piece of wrapping paper her name and address and how she had received her awful injury.

To-day her faithful husband, sitting at her bedside, where he has been even since she was brought from the operating table, is helping to cheer his wife and she is writing him notes telling him how she feels.

In reply to questions by Chief Urquhart of Arlington, Mrs. Gleason wrote in that official's note book:

"Lynch came up behind me as I was stooping over. Did it with a razor.

(Signed) EMMA GLEASON.

Tom Lynch did it.

To Andrew Piggott of Mystic street, from whom Lynch borrow the shotgun with which he killed himself, he said: "Lend me your shotgun. I want to shoot a dog. I'll get $2 for it."

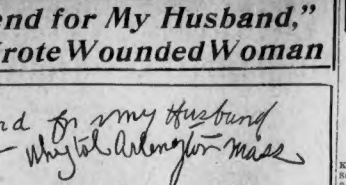
He asked if the gun was loaded, and on being told no he asked for one shell.

Despite the fact that Mrs. Gleason was living with her husband, who was employed at Wigtal's grocery store, and Lynch had a pleasant home and a nine-year-old boy, they made little effort to conceal their friendship.

Yesterday was Lynch's afternoon off and he told his wife when he was leaving him home after dinner that he was going into Crosby's woods for dandelions and he carried a large paper bag and a case knife away with him for the purpose.

Mrs. Gleason also told her husband at dinner time that she was going out for dandelions and when she went out she carried a paper bag and a case knife also. The police believe that the early meeting was a prearranged one; that Lynch and Mrs. Gleason went to Crosby's woods to effect an understanding as to their relations.

"Send for My Husband," Wrote Wounded Woman



On way to hospital, Mrs. Gleason, whose throat was cut at Arlington by Thomas Lynch, who committed suicide, scribbled the message of which the cut is a facsimile.

MAYOR SIGNS 4TH CONTRACT

Mayor Hibbard signed to-day the fourth and final draft of the city's five-year street lighting contract, with the Edison Electric Illuminating Company. He forwarded copies of the same to City Clerk Priest and City Auditor Mitchell.

The Edison company is having a lot of copies printed on its own account to give to anyone who wishes one.

The fourth contract is substantially the same as the others. A few defects in the previous drafts have been remedied, such as putting the ten-year extension clause into the body of the document and so on.

The lighting contract episode is now closed so far as the Mayor's office goes.

The Common Council committee appointed to investigate the contract has a hearing set for next Tuesday night. Superintendent of Streets Guy C. Emerson, President James J. Storrow of the Boston Merchants' Association and others who have figured in the recent controversy have been invited to attend.

HOLD YOUTHS FOR ATTEMPTING BREAK

Three youths, Robert F. Mealey, Charles Hogan and George Rourke, were in the Charlestown Court to-day charged with attempting to break and enter the store of Samuel A. Wilson, No. 87 Main street, Charlestown. Judge Bragg held them in $500 each for the grand jury. The work of the police is that the boys had scaled a 10-foot fence in the rear of the store, and were hard at work on the rear door with a jimmy and crowbar.

TAFT HAS INFLAMED EYE; WEARS A SHADE

WASHINGTON, May 7.—President Taft "got it in the eye." A foreign substance entered the left eye of the chief executive yesterday. The intruding object was removed by a surgeon, but it left the eye so badly inflamed that to-day it is covered by a shade.

OLYMPIC FOR BOSTON BOYS

The "1915" committee is planning to institute an Olympic festival this Summer for Boston boys. This festival is to be made a permanent institution, if possible. As its name implies, it will be a series of athletic events and sports for the boys.

There will be no Marathon runs in it, however. They are considered too strenuous for growing youngsters. The events will be arranged with view to the youth of the contestants.

The idea of a Summer festival of sports for the boys is interesting just now on account of North End Park being closed to boys of over twelve years of age. The older lads have monopolized this park of late years, whereas it was primarily meant as a breathing spot for the tired mothers and little folk of the North End tenement district.

The big lads will be taken care of by the Olympic festival.

$150,000 HEIRESS FOUND MARRIED

NEW YORK, May 7.—Hazel Drew, the $150,000 Brooklyn heiress, who disappeared last Christmas with Walter McCreal of No. 558 Union street, was found to-day with him in Trenton, N. J. They had been married on Christmas day in the New Jersey capital. She is not yet eighteen years old.

USE SKELETON TO SHOW HOW PRINTER DIED

In the trial to-day of Roderick C. MacKenzie and Murdock C. MacGregor in the Superior Criminal Court, before Judge Schofield, on the charge of manslaughter, in the death of Richard F. Mitchell, a printer, at the Pierce Farm, part of a human skeleton was the rather gruesome exhibit on which Medical Examiner William G. MacDonald demonstrated Mitchell's injuries.

For a time the jury was excused to-day, as it had been yesterday afternoon, to allow the attorneys to argue certain matters of law before the Judge alone. Yesterday several witnesses were heard by the Judge after the jury had been excused. The Judge has not decided as yet if this testimony is to go before the jury.

District Attorney Hill produced a skeleton when he went on with the examination of Dr. MacDonald, and the doctor pointed out on the skeleton all the fractures of the ribs that Mitchell had sustained by comparison.

"There is some degree of elasticity in the ribs under pressure?" asked Mr. Hill.

"Yes," replied Dr. MacDonald.

"It would therefore require considerable force to produce the condition of broken ribs you found in Mitchell?"

"Yes."

"Was all the breaking of the ribs in Mitchell's body done at the same time?" asked Mr. Hill.

"I should think so. The line of the breaks indicate that. I would say they were all broken at the same time."

Dr. MacDonald testified that a person who had received injuries such as Mitchell would lose his strength.

"Could he walk?" was asked.

"Yes, an insane person could keep along a good deal longer than any other person, because of his being less susceptible to pain."

TAKE 18 MEN IN RAID AT MIDNIGHT

Waltham police raided the Prospect street home of George Ross, a chef, at midnight, and, finding eighteen men in the cellar, playing dice and chips were scattered about, arrested them all. When arraigned in the Waltham District Court to-day they pleaded guilty and paid fines of $10 each.

TAMMANYITES TRIM CROKERS OF MILLIONS

NEW YORK, May 7.—With Richard Croker only out of the country a week, after what appeared to be a long and harmonious visit, Tammany struck a hard blow at the Croker family and stripped it of the most valuable asset inherited when the former chief of the clan abdicated.

By the adoption of the new code which is to control building in this city young Richard Croker loses an interest in the building industry worth hundreds of thousands of dollars to him.

As a member of a concrete and fire-proofing firm, the Roebling Construction Company, young Mr. Croker has been favored in the past, and the concern has prospered. The prosperity has proven costly. Envious eyes looked upon the business and a new firm was formed.

The morning spirits are said to have been Charles F. Murphy and Big Tim Sullivan. At any rate a new code was framed almost simultaneously with the birth of the new company, a code which favored it far above all rivals, and it has been adopted by the special commission.

The plan to give this new firm almost a monopoly of the business was carefully worked out, but despite the precautions the scheme was discovered, and is said to have been the personal cause of the recent visit of Richard Croker to his country.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

HELD AS EMBEZZLER; TO BE TAKEN SOUTH

James A. Adams, arrested at the home of a married sister in Fairhaven and charged with embezzling $1,453.57 from the United States Postoffice Department, waived examination before Commissioner Hayes in Boston to-day and was held in $1,500. Adams desires that his case be heard in the Federal Court in Birmingham, Ala., and will be taken South at once. He was chief clerk in the money order office at Ensley, Ala.

TELEGRAPH BILL SENT TO DRAPER

After reconsidering the vote whereby it passed to be engrossed a bill to require telegraph companies to mark the filing and receiving on all time messages, the State Senate to-day amended the bill so that the maximum penalty is at $100. The minimum is left to the discretion of the Court. The bill originally provided a fine of from $50 to $500. After amending, the Senate passed the bill to be engrossed. It goes now to the Governor.

8 RULES FOR HAPPY HOME

CHICAGO, May 7.—What is an ideal family?

This question is "solved" in a number of letters to the Rev. D. D. Vaughan, pastor of the Halsted Street Institutional Church, sent in response to questions he asked in a series of sermons on the model husband, the perfect wife and the ideal home. Here is a composite picture of the ideal home, according to Dr. Vaughan's correspondents:

The wife has as much right to the money as the husband.

Positively no credit must be considered.

Parents must never sacrifice themselves to the point of indulgence.

Force children to be obedient, with a hope of reward, and be free in expressing your love for them.

Children should never be lied to in order to force them to be obedient; never harden the older children with the younger ones.

The sisters should never be obliged to give up school for the brothers.

Brothers and sisters should treat each other alike and favors at home should not be governed according to their sex.

Children have no right to be paid for the work they do at home.

OPERATION ON BOY TO REMOVE "JACK"

NEW YORK, May 7.—Nine-year-old Ervin Klimess of No. 225 Avenue A, while playing jacks with his little sister, to-day swallowed one of the jacks. The boy became unconscious from fright and pain, and when the family physician turned him first upwards and if failed to dislodge the intruder he was rushed off to Bellevue Hospital and an operation performed.

150 YEARS AS SPAN OF LIFE

NEW YORK, May 7.—"When tuberculosis and other preventable causes of excessive mortality are mastered; when those less than fifty tell the truth about their work, and those more than eighty do the same about their age, it may be possible for actuaries to figure on 150 years as the span of human life," declared John Cadore of Newark, N. J., president of the Actuaries' Society of America. Mr. Cadore told many other interesting things about the duration of human life at the twentieth annual meeting of the society in the Metropolitan building here yesterday to 100 members of the organization.

He said the rate of deaths from heart disease, cancer, certain functional ailments and suicide is 56 per cent. higher in the United States than the mortality from the same causes fifty years ago.

"But," he said, "the national death rate has largely decreased, yet the decrease is almost entirely confined to the infantile period. Above fifty years the decrease has been very small, or an actual increase has been shown by statistics. From 1889 to 1901 there was a decrease of seven in each thousand of population in the total number of deaths. In 1901 it was twenty-one to a thousand.

"Thousands of preventable deaths still occur every year, though deaths from tuberculosis have decreased in our northern cities from more than thirty to less than twenty in ten thousand population. During the same period deaths from typhoid fever have decreased from five to three in 10,000."

DIPHTHERIA CLOSES TAFT'S PREP SCHOOL

WATERTOWN, Ct., May 7.—Owing to an epidemic of diphtheria at Taft's Preparatory School in this place, it has been decided to close the school for two weeks. Several cases of this disease have developed in the past few weeks, and the health officer, Dr. J. S. Marble, has decided that the best way to stop its spreading will be to let the students all go home.

TENNIS EXPERTS BATTLE FOR HONOR OF MEETING CHAMPION

Miss Eleanora Sears. Miss Martha Pitkin.

Miss Edith Rotch. Miss Marion Fenno. Miss Margaret Curtis.

Large Gallery Sees Many Surprises in Brookline Tournament.

Mrs. Barger-Wallach, the national champion woman tennis player, is due in this city to-day for the big tennis tournament on the Brookline Country Club courts. With Miss Marion Homans and Miss Wildey she is to meet a trio of Boston's best woman tennis experts in an interclty match.

A big gallery was out to-day on the courts to watch the second day's tennis battle. The matches brought out several strong teams.

There were many surprises in the opening matches, chief of which was the defeat in the mixed double of Miss Eleanora Sears and H. C. Johnson by Miss Marion Homans and Arthur Wrenshaw.

In the second round of the singles earlier in the day Miss Homans had met her Waterloo at the hands of Miss Warren, but paired with Wrenshaw she showed to better advantage. Miss Sears and her partner began in good style, and early in the contest the result looked a foregone conclusion, but toward the latter part of the fight the pair fell away considerably and were eventually defeated in the best match of the entire day by a score of 8—6, 7—5.

The opening card was the singles tournament and all the favorites came through with flying colors and without losing a set to their opponents. One of the outstanding matches of the forenoon was the contest between Miss Edith Rotch and Miss Margaret Curtis, and although the honors went easily to the former, 6—2, 6—2, Miss Curtis played a good hard match.

The first game was won by Miss Rotch after the game had stood at 40 before. Miss Curtis set out in brilliant fashion after the second set, and her volleying kept her opponent considerable difficulty. Miss Rotch, however, finally took her opponent's measure and won handily.

Miss Eleanora Sears did not find much opposition from Miss Martha Pitkin. Miss Sears played with her usual brilliancy, and the points which were marked against her were in the most part due to her own errors, the final score being 6—2, 6—1, in her favor.

The remaining matches in the first round were between Mis Ruth Winsor and Miss Marion Hall, the former winning 6—3, 6—2, and Miss Charlotte Allen and Miss S. H. Wells. This match was the only one of the morning to go three sets. The closest match in the first round was the meeting of Miss Hilda Williams and Mrs. H. Greenough, which the former won, 6—0, 6—0.

In the second round Miss Marion Fenno won from Miss P. Stackpole, 5—4, 6—1.

GUNSHOT ENDS CARPENTER'S LIFE

Frank Peters, a Hingham carpenter, died at the Massachusetts General Hospital today. He was found on the estate of his half-brother, William Peters of Cavitt street, Hingham, suffering from a gunshot wound in his left breast. Peters is said to have told Dr. Peterson of Hingham that he shot himself, but when Police Chief W. J. Jones questioned him he denied attempting his own life. It is believed his mind was unbalanced. He was out of work and despondent.

CHEIRO, PET OF SOCIETY, GOES TO JAIL

PARIS, May 7.—Count Louis Hamon, better in New York and Boston as "Cheiro the Palmist," has been sentenced to thirteen months' imprisonment and ordered to pay a fine of 500 francs and restitution to Count Festetics of sums of which he has swindled that Hungarian nobleman amounting to nearly 1,000,000 francs.

Cheiro, who was originally a servant to a Belfast hotel, and whose real name is Warner, was sentenced by default. He left Paris for London abruptly on Christmas Eve, when he learned that a warrant for his arrest was about to be issued at the instance of two American women. Miss Pomeroy and her sister, from whom he had obtained bonds and stocks valued at nearly 1,000,000.

Driven Out of the City.

Among Cheiro's victims in New York and Boston were some of the best known society people. Some of the information he extracted from women clients seemed so valuable to him that he attempted to force their husbands to pay money. Complaints were made to the police, and though Cheiro was not arrested, he was driven out of town. Similar experiences had put an end to his career as a palmist in London. His career as a banker in Paris had been equally inglorious.

Cheiro was last heard from in London, where he was found on January 7 last, shortly after he had been missed from Paris. The authorities did not know that he had fled until they tried to serve papers in the complaint of Mrs. George Baldwin Newell, widow of a New York lawyer, and her sister, Miss Josephine Pomeroy.

At the time, Count Hamon, as he styled himself, said he was in London simply on business. He insisted that the complaint of the wealthy American women was all a mistake, and could be explained. He said that the transaction was a legitimate one and would have been settled in London or New York without trouble. He protested that he was not in the least frightened and would return here without delay.

Love Letters From Rich Women.

But Cheiro did not return to Paris to his apartment which had held congress of the most fashionable women and where 400 fervent love letters had been tossed aside. The authorities were heartless enough to search these apartments and to read the letters and find that they came from the most fashionable women in the wealthy American colony here and from French women of the noble houses.

These letters were filled with endearing terms, and since the disappearance of Cheiro many of his correspondents have been almost in a state of collapse for fear that the letters and names would be made public. Some of these who read the letters said that the list of Cheiro's correspondents, if printed, would cause an international sensation.

SANFOR DSURE TO RETAIN HIS JOB

Although he has not sent the name of any paid officials whose term expired on May 1 to the Board of Aldermen for reappointment, it is announced officially by Mayor Hibbard to-day that Election Commissioner Alpheus Sanford and Charles E. Young, secretary of the board, will be reappointed. The Mayor has delayed making the reappointments until he learns what disposition the Legislature makes of the amendments to the charter relative to the confirmation of department heads by the Civil Service Commission.

IN GIRLHOOD AND WOMANHOOD

Dr. Williams' Blood Making Pink Pills Give Health and Strength.

The tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cures weak women by enriching and purifying the blood. It gives strength and health to every part of the body and enables each to do its work regularly and well.

Weakness soon results in impure blood, and is a constant drag upon the strength of the entire body. Every woman knows how quickly stomach disorders follow weakness, with the result that there is a general lack of nourishment. The already overworked nerves become starved, and breakdown and nervousness is added to the misery of the sufferer.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the one medicine exactly suited to the needs of weak women. From the time she is developing into womanhood until the trials of the fortieth year are passed, a woman needs the strength that pure blood alone can give.

Miss Matilda Le Clair, a seamstress, of No. 56 Queen street, Lowell, Mass., after growing worse under the doctor's treatment, decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The cure they effected in her case cannot fail to recommend them to other suffering women. She says:

"I suffered for a year or more with female weakness, which was brought on by overwork. My cheeks and lips were white and I was miserable all the time. I had no appetite, was continually suffering from nervous, dizzy headaches and did not have strength enough to work. I did not sleep nights and thought I was going into consumption.

"I was treated by a doctor for six months and was sent into the country but was not helped at all. I was becoming worse and was discouraged. A friend in Vermont urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after I had taken them a short time I seemed to have some life and began to gain rapidly. I was soon myself again and took the pills until I felt entirely cured. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are certainly a good medicine for weak women and I shall always praise them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be mailed, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Sometimes the Truth Hurts

When it does you hear a wail from the injured party. We believe in the truth first, last and all the time, regardless of whom it hits. When we began our advertising campaign early in the spring the opinion was freely voiced that we could not make the public realize that we were telling the truth.

We have been successful—so successful that we will finally force others of the tailoring fraternity to follow our example and advertise honestly.

We say that it is impossible for any tailor (no exception to this statement) to make a custom suit to order at less than twenty dollars. If it were possible we would have known how to do it long ago, for we have been in the tailoring business 36 years, and have always kept abreast of all the new tailoring ideas.

And when you consider the cost of good woolens, good linings and trimmings and good workmanship we believe your own good sense will tell you that we are right in our contention.

Our claim for your patronage is based on our long career of honorable business dealing, and the fact that we set a style pace in our suits at $20 that others find it difficult to follow at $30.

An interview will please us and can do you no harm.

MANY PROTEST ANTE-NUPTIAL PACT RULING

NEW YORK, May 7.—The decision given by Judge Matthew G. Reynolds of St. Louis declaring ante-nuptial contracts invalid in so far as they stipulate for the education of the children in the faith of one of the parties, is causing widespread discussion of a dissenting nature.

The decision, which is said by lawyers to be the first of its kind, is of great importance, as it affects one of the cardinal principles of the Catholic church, as dispensations for the marriage of a Catholic to a non-Catholic are granted only on the written agreement by the non-Catholic to allow the offspring of the marriage to be brought up in the Catholic faith.

The consensus of opinion among priests and lawyers, even non-Catholic members of the legal profession, is that such contracts are as binding in law as any other kind of contracts.

By MGR. JAMES H. M'GEAN,
Pastor of St. Peter's Church, Barclay Street.

Whatever construction a judge may place upon this kind of contract, the fact remains that the church itself is concerned about it only from the point of view of conscience.

I am not well enough versed in law to be able to pronounce upon how the courts would construe such a contract, although it seems to me that a common sense construction would place it in the same category with any other solemn contract.

The contracting parties agree, first, that only one religious ceremony will be performed; secondly, that the Catholic party to the contract shall not be interfered with in his or her religious duties; and, thirdly, that if there are children of the union they shall be brought up in the Catholic faith.

If the priest has any reason to suspect that these promises will not be lived up to, he will not apply for a dispensation. But once the dispensation is granted, the church assumes that the parties making the promise will perform it. If they fail I know of no instance in which the church has ever taken any legal steps to enforce it. The matter is left entirely with the persons' consciences.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

TOWN VOTES "DRY"; 40 FIRES STARTED

PLAINVIEW, Neb., May 7.—In revenge for the town voting "dry," incendiaries scattered kerosene over a number of buildings, cut the fire belcord and applied the torch. Fire was discovered in the Methodist Church. A few minutes later flames broke out in the parsonage, and then in other residences of the prohibition leaders. Within an hour forty different fires were started.

CLOUD CAUSES BALLOON DROP OF 6700 FEET

Mr. Gliddon and Mr. Flagg observed some extraordinary phenomena. They believe that the Clayton current has taken a course a mile higher up owing to atmospheric pressure nearer the earth's surface.

When the aeronauts got two miles above the earth they could look squarely at the sun without flinching, although the great orb shone like a metal disc at white heat. They could gaze at it two minutes at a stretch without blinking.

The moon was shining so brilliantly before the sun arose that it cast a good light by it.

When the sun suddenly began to shine again the balloon shot up to an altitude of two miles at a speed of 300 feet a minute.

At 4,000 feet elevation the temperature was 60 degrees and at two miles was below freezing.

It rained at one time as if Willowdale Pond was shooting up in the air to meet them. But this was an optical delusion caused by a cloud of mist suddenly rising from the surface of the water.

The ascension was made in the "Boston," a big balloon owned by the Aero Club of New England.

SCHUMANN-HEINK IN ROW WITH STRAUSS

NEW YORK, May 7.—Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink, just arrived from abroad, objects to singing on the same stage with cows, sheep and pigs. Speaking of Richard Strauss's new opera, "Elektra," just produced in Berlin, and which is to be given at the Manhattan Opera House next season, Schumann-Heink says: "I sang the part of Clytemnestra at one performance of 'Elektra' in Berlin. There was enough for me. Mr. Strauss has made the orchestration for the whole show. The singers have little chance. Another thing—In the effort to give real color to the scene the stage is filled with cows and sheep and pigs. Anybody who can sing amid such surroundings must have no nerves left in her nose."

LITTLE BABY HORRIBLY BURNED

By Boiling Grease—Skin All Came off One Side of Face and Head—Tried an Ointment which Made It All Fester—Wee Sufferer Seemed Disfigured for Life.

CURED WITHOUT A MARK BY CUTICURA

"About a year and eight months ago my baby, aged ten months, was sitting on the mat beside the fender and we were preparing the breakfast when the frying-pan full of boiling grease was upset and it went all over one side of the baby's face and head. One of the girls ran in and wiped the scald with a towel and you may think what a mess she made, pulling the entire skin off. We took her to a chemist who told us to get a doctor, which we did. He attended her a week and gave me some stuff like lard to put on. But it all festered and I thought the baby was disfigured for life. A woman close beside me told me to try Cuticura Ointment. I used about three boxes and it was wonderful how it healed. In about five weeks it was better and there wasn't a mark to tell where the scald had been. People used to ask me if that was the baby that was scalded and they would hardly believe me when I told them she was and what cured her face. Her skin is just like velvet, and I have never been without Cuticura since. Cuticura cured three other children of ringworm besides, so I have good cause to thank it for what it has done. Mrs. Hare, 1 Cuthbert Terrace, Sunderland Road, Durham, England, March 22, 1909."

MOSLEMS FIRE YANKEE POST

BEIRUT, Asiatic Turkey, May 7.—An investigator who has just returned here from a trip to Kessab reports that all the American property at that place has been destroyed by the Moslem raiders, who set it on fire.

The American property there consisted of a girls' high school under the direction of Miss Effie N. Chambers, a missionary of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions. Three-fourths of the native houses also have been destroyed, but the Armenian church and the new Protestant school buildings are still standing.

Almost all the people who fled from Kessab have returned. They found that their houses had been looted. They are absolutely destitute.

One hundred Turkish reserves have returned to this town, but as they took part in the rioting and killing there, the people cannot trust them.

There was a congregation of 1,500 Protestants at Kessab.

WOMAN HALES HER LANDLORD TO COURT

Edward O. Holmes, a Malden clubman and real estate owner, was summoned into the Malden District Court to-day on complaint of one of his tenants, Mrs. Emma M. Mitchell, that he grabbed so rudely for a rent receipt she was holding that he injured her hand. The case was continued till later in the week, and Holmes was released on his own recognizance.

JORDAN CRIES FOR LAWYERS

"Where are my lawyers? Where are the members of my family? Why don't they come to see me?"

These questions were asked in an irritable tone of voice to-day by Chester S. Jordan of attendants in the East Cambridge jail, where he awaits sentence to the electric chair for the murder of his wife, should his attorneys not be granted a new trial.

This was a new mood for the man who has been so cold and indifferent during the sensational trial, and it caused Sheriff Fairbairn and others of the prison to keep Jordan under especial surveillance.

Learning of her brother's inquiries and distress because he had been, as he supposed, neglected, Mrs. Fred C. Kendall today called at the jail, was admitted and spent from 10:30 until 11:30 with Jordan. They talked earnestly during this time. When Mrs. Kendall emerged from the prison she walked with her head bowed and when met by a reporter for the AMERICAN it was plain to be seen that she had been weeping.

"How is your brother to-day?" she was asked.

"Oh, please do not ask me—do not ask me," she said with a sob. "I simply cannot talk about him."

It was expected that Jordan's lawyers, headed by General Charles W. Bartlett, would have a consultation in his cell to-day about the course of his defence, but the conference has been postponed until the beginning of next week.

They will then begin the preparation of their bill of exceptions to be presented to the Supreme Court of the State. At the same time they will put into shape the points which they will call to the attention of the United States Supreme Court asking that the verdict be set aside because of the alleged illegality of the indictment.

"AFFINITY" SON SUES FOR CASH

SAN FRANCISCO, May 7.—Wraiths of a withered romance have been dredged from the grave by Edward E. Averell, until to-day known as the nephew of Edward H. Harriman, who reveals his mother as a former affinity of August E. Arlot, a chef esteemed by the gourmets of the old San Francisco.

He has begun proceedings in the Superior court to recover a portion of the $35,000 estate amassed by the dead Frenchman from his battery de cuisine. Averell's petition for a portion of the estate left by Arlot, who died last June, is one of the most outspoken documents ever filed in the superior court. The attorneys associated in the case realize this fact and have been endeavoring to drape the document in mystery, claiming that they are not familiar with any part of the history of Averell than it discloses.

Averell, who is twenty-three years old, entered the service of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company last December, when he became storekeeper on the liner Korea. Mrs. Averell, his mother, is now the wife of Isaac Seymour Averell, a first cousin of Mrs. E. H. Harriman, and a former partner of the railroad magnate in the brokerage business in Wall street. The elder Averell is at present connected with the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Mrs. Averell, who lives at No. 1624 Butter street, is a fascinating woman a little past forty. While refusing to discuss the disclosures made in her son's petition, Mrs. Averell declared to-day that her justification in seeking a share of Arlot's fortune

CALL DR. MYERS TO THE TEMPLE

The Rev. Cortland Myers, D. D., one of the most brilliant and scholarly clergymen in this country and pastor of the Bapt[ist] Temple in Brooklyn, N. Y., will shortly be called to the pulpit of Tremont Temple. The board of deacons and the executive board voted unanimously to recommend the name to the church meeting a week from to-night. That he will accept the call is considered practically certain.

As far back as the latter part of 190[8] when Dr. G. C. Lorimer, since deceased, resigned from the Temple pulpit, there was a very strong sentiment in favor of securing Dr. Myers as his successor.

In Dr. Myers the Temple will have a pastor of distinctive personality of marked eloquence and vigor. When he assumed the guidance of the Brooklyn Temple, sixteen years ago, Dr. Myers found the membership to-day, mostly through his own personal efforts, they number 2,000.

HARVARD WILL HAVE ENTRIES IN AUTO RACE

Interest among Harvard students who own automobiles has waxed hot upon the announcement of the offer of a Harvard trophy for the fastest machine in the Crimson University in the Readville races of June 17, and the discussion of a race between Harvard and Yale to the Alaska-Yukon Exposition at Seattle this Summer.

The Harvard trophy is a settled thing and plans for the proposed race to the Pacific between the two colleges are fast taking shape. The distance for the Harvard trophy at the Readville races is twenty-five miles and the prize is open to all cars owned and driven by Harvard men. There are a large number of fast cars of every description in Cambridge owned by Harvard undergraduates and the race will afford an excellent opportunity to test the speed qualities of these machines. This will be the first time that there has been any race between Harvard cars owned by Harvard students with the exception of a few informal and friendly brushes on the Cambridge highways.

It is taken as a significant indication of the interest of the students in regular automobile races that they have already raised $600 with which to purchase the trophy which will go to the winner.

The offer extended by the management of the Alaska-Yukon Exposition for a race to the Coast between cars from Harvard and Yale has also occasioned much discussion among Harvard undergraduates and a number of men have already signified their intention to enter such an event.

The races at Readville for the Harvard trophy will round up the available cars for the Pacific race and negotiation with Yale will meanwhile be made. If a race is arranged between the two colleges the machines which show up the best in the Readville race will probably be selected to represent the Crimson in the race to Seattle.

MICKEY M'DONOUGH TO FIGHT GAINES

Jerry Gaines, the market champion, and Mickey McDonough, the Brooklyn cyclone, will remain the fun for the members of the Faneuil Hall A. C. to-night. The boys have ten hard rounds ahead of them for a decision and each is confident of winning. McDonough arrived in town last night. He has an excellent record and will give the utmost satisfaction, and Jerry will have to be at his best to get him. The man with the fistic is confident that he will land it on Mickey.

The semi-final between Johnny Cavill and Bert Delaney will be another interesting event, and so will that affair between Billy Griffen and Jack Mulkern.

Notes of Dove Games

"Well, if the Doves won 'em all there'd be no league," the optimistic fan was heard to say.

* * *

The bugs got enough baseball for their money—five hours and forty-five minutes straight playing.

* * *

The two losing sessions knocked the Doves to third place.

* * *

"Tell it to" Sweeney came in for a good roast by the fans on account of his poor throw to the plate, which allowed the winning run to be made. These same forgetful lungs never hesitated long enough to think how Bill saved the day in the seventh inning by knocking down what looked like a sure hit and tagged a Giant going to third.

* * *

And if any one asks if Peaches Graham played a good game, please answer in the affirmative. He nabbed several runners trying to swipe the middle cushion and each time his throw was almost perfect. He did not do much with the willow, but neither did many of the others.

* * *

Beaumont's best, when he batted for Graham in the 8th inning of the long term, was a pop foul which was peaches and cream for Mr. Devlin.

* * *

Both Myers and Schlei wore heavy armor about the pedal extremities.

* * *

Umpire Cusack certainly does not let the players "sass" him, and he died game to several Giants, sending Schaefer from the game and relieving Tenney of the coach line duties. Tenney rolled down the wrath of his alibi by using the gentlemanly phrase, "All right, for good Umpire."

* * *

Tommy McCarty was loaded down with horseshoes. He got out of more tight holes by pure luck than by high-class pitching.

* * *

Raymond was certainly a stingy person with hits, allowing the Doves only eight safeties. These he stretched out and only in one round the Doves got more than one.

* * *

The opening game was certainly a shiftless affair. The Giants made six errors, most of them very punky.

* * *

It required another demonstration to convince the New Yorkers that Becker's wing was as true as an arrow. He shot the ball from right field to Peaches and nabbed McCormick at the plate.

* * *

Both Bates and Murray played great games in left field for their respective teams.

* * *

In the eleventh inning Raymond showed the fans why he deserves the nickname, "Bugs." He took a strike-out as a huge joke and made a few passes, a la Slim Langford, at Tenney, who was proceeding to the swatting station.

* * *

George Wiltse had the Doves' goats in the initial contest. He let them secure but four hits.

* * *

Louis Durham, the original "Bull" Durham of baseball, did not come with the team. He is in New York suffering with rheumatism in his shoulder.

* * *

McGraw may be here to-day to help his team one run in the opening inning of the first game.

* * *

It seems that Claude Hitchey comes from the same school of baseball in which Larry Lajoie received training, for Claude surely broke his record when he let Herk try to steal on a short single. Lajoie says to take chances and win. We took the chances, but we did not win.

Baseball News and Notes

Glenn the umpire didn't earn their money easy, for they had to umpire their ball to the fans. Perhaps the rest may prove beneficial to one Mr. Byron.

* * *

Clark Griffith tried to tempt Chance by offering him Hildrith, for Zimmerman, but the Cub leader said "Nay." The Old Fox came back with an offer of Keefe, McLean and Hulbert for Johnny Kling and Zimmerman. The Cubs' boss simply shook his head and said, "Not a chance."

* * *

President Kibbels, of the Brooklyn team, has a new system for selling seat tickets at Washington Park from falling into the hands of speculators. It will be tried, but not before July 4th, at the gate. Instead, the patron who wishes to occupy the best seats will pay regular grandstand admission at the gate and then take seats in the second section, which will be sold at 50c. Season prices and issue coupons for the 50c holders will be issued, and so will their tickets to the baseball spectaculars will be issued.

* * *

Everybody asking, "Will the Giants hit?" That is the question. No matter how good the pitching and the fielding there are few pennants won without hitting. The Sox were champions because they had a lot of base running done in a scientific manner. Detroit is winning games because of its hitting. Will the Giants hit? Will Mathewson or Mc Graw or Wiltse or Ames or Crandall or Marquard or some outfield slumper there are capable men on the bench waiting to get in the game.

* * *

Mobile has closed a deal with President Comiskey of the Chicago Americans for the purchase of Catcher Shaw. Shaw played with the Boston Americans in 1907. Mobile has also bought Pitcher Petit from the Shreveport team. He has reported.

* * *

George Moriarty is making the hit of his life in Detroit. There were many New York fans who respected Moriarty as a fine player, but he was misfitted about so much on the New York team that he lost heart. Moriarty fits well in Detroit's fast infield.

* * *

Simmerman, subbing for Johnny Evers, has been doing the best stick work for the Cubs, hitting for .340 in his first 53 games.

* * *

Camnitz has pitched 20 innings this season, and in but two of them has the Kentuckian been scored upon. Camnitz is going like a house on fire, and he will make a mighty strong argument when he reports this year.

* * *

It is most pleasing to note that "Lefty" Leifield is back in form. Although he is a hard worker, although not generally credited with being so, and although it was at his own request that he was sent against the champions on a cold, blustery day, when any pitcher would have been excused for attempting the game.

* * *

Glenn is playing great ball for the Phillies this Spring and showing great improvement in stick work. Billy Hinchman and Harwood Magee have been doing some timely club work for the Quakers.

* * *

All prior has backed the Giants to win the pennant to the tune of $1000, wonder if he will his stake money mixed with the real tank roll!

SHRUBB PICKS SWEDE TO WIN BIG MARATHON

Alfred Shrubb, although he is now in Montreal, on request signed the following story to the BOSTON AMERICAN. As everybody knows, Shrubb is one of the greatest long-distance runners in the country, and although he cannot run the full Marathon distance himself, his opinion of Saturday's race is interesting and one that should be especially instructive to those who contemplate betting on the result.

By ALFRED SHRUBB.

MONTREAL, May 7.—I have been asked by the Hearst papers to name the men who should finish three, to where the great International Marathon at the Polo Grounds to-morrow. I think that Svanberg, the Swede, will finish first. St. Yves should be second and Durando third.

This is my opinion, based on my experience as a runner and my observation of the men engaged in this contest. Any one who has ever tried to "dope" a horse race knows how little dependence may be placed on past performances, and this is even more true of men in a run of twenty-six miles.

In the first place, a run of twenty-six miles is not so much a race as an endurance contest. Speed, as we know speed in races, plays a very small part. The man who wins is the one who can keep up an average trotting gait longer and more steadily than the other men in the race.

Won't Try Marathon Again.

I am not handing this out as a knock on Marathon races because I do not qualify. I never but off to any one who can run twenty-six miles, for that distance is beyond me. I will never attempt another Marathon race.

His performance against Simpson at Celtic Park about eliminates the Indian from the figuring on to-morrow's run and makes Svanberg the most dangerous man.

My placing St. Yves second will not require any explanation. The Frenchman has made a wonderful record as a distance runner, and his winning of the last International Marathon naturally gives him a place well up with the leaders, if we can count past performances at all. Aside from his accomplished feats he is a sturdy and courageous runner, and is sure to be heard of before the race is over.

Durando, too, is so well known to the athletic public that I do not feel it necessary to go into details for my placing him third. Had he not run a badly judged race in London he might have won the Olympic Marathon from Hayes and at track running he has proved his superiority over the young American. He is one of the few Marathon runners on whom the terrible strain of the twenty-six-mile grind seems to have little effect.

"Watch the Dark Horse."

There is one dark horse in the race that will bear watching. That is March of Canada. He won the Canadian Marathon over a course that was found to be a little short of the regulation distance. He is one of the straightest men that have broken into the Marathon game. They tell a story of Marsh, that he loaded a big wagon with hay one morning, drove it twelve miles to the market, unloaded after he had sold it, and then went out to Marathon race. He had just time to change his clothes and get out onto the road, but he won the race in handy style.

There is another runner in the race tomorrow that few know anything about. Carvajal, the Cuban, is one of the gamest men that ever got onto a track, but his speed is not up to the notch. He finished third in the Olympic Marathon at St. Louis during the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. This race was run on the last day of August in a typical St. Louis Summer. Carvajal ran twenty-five miles over roads that were five or six inches deep with dust and finished third.

Here is how Shrubb places the runners at the finish of the Marathon: First, Svanberg (Sweden); first, St. Yves (France); second; Durando (Italy); third; March (Canada); fourth; Simpson (Canada), fifth; Carvajal (Cuba); sixth; Malone (Ireland), seventh; Appleby (England), eighth; White (Ireland), ninth; Crook (United States), tenth; Orphee (France), eleventh; Cebot (France), twelfth.

John L. Sullivan's Column

While the subject is timely, I want to take a fling at it before another day goes past, and that is the early beginning of the baseball championship season.

Not only the magnates, but the fans have seen this season what folly it was to open so early.

Every year now the same thing happens. Cold weather hurts in and spoils the few contests and endangers some of the star players by loading them up with rheumatic germs which may or may not do serious execution as time goes on.

The magnates have lost thousands of dollars every Spring by endeavoring to open the season as early as possible, so as not to lose any available good-looking Spring days, but what has it amounted to?

Year after year the old plan of starting on a certain date is lived up to in spite of the fact that the seasons are advancing and Winter is not really over before the ball tossers get out to begin a championship campaign when they have no license to.

The number of games postponed this Spring is almost appalling, and this means a launch of doubleheaders spread over the Summer, and two games in one only tends to cheapen the sport.

Usually the fans, knowing that a doubleheader is coming along, will wait for the double combat for the same amount of money.

In my mind the time to start is May 1, and that is early enough. April is too fickle in regard to weather conditions, while October, the month the schedule ends up, is a glorious month for baseball.

The idea that baseball conflicts with football in October has no weight, as football games are only played on one day in the week, Saturday, while baseball reigns every day.

MALONEY GETS DRAW WITH PIERCE

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—Teddy Maloney and Young Pierce went six fast rounds to a draw at the Broadway A. C. It was a strenuous bout all the way through. Maloney was the aggressor in most of the rounds, always carrying the fight to his opponent, but Pierce showed his cleverness and fought Maloney off repeatedly. As both boys showed a desire to mix it up, there was some merry rolling in several of the rounds.

THE BOOK THAT COST THE SULTAN HIS THRONE—For the first time the wicked Abdul Hamid was made fun of in print, and down he fell. Read about it in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

FRAYNE BOXES WELSH TONIGHT

NEW YORK, May 6.—There will be no wrangling over weight when the time comes for Johnny Frayne and Freddie Welsh to weigh in, which is 3 o'clock today, for Frayne now weighs 134 pounds, but one pound above the notch agreed on. Johnny will take a run through the park this morning and be at 133 and in the best possible condition. They meet tonight at the Fairmont Club.

Joe Humphries, manager for Welsh, informed Heine Rafuel that his man insisted on Frayne being at weight, 133 pounds, and he didn't want any disappointment as he was greeted with in Boston, when Dreiher refused to weigh in.

Like Welsh, the lightweight limit is featherweight for Frayne, so all arguments on that point will be set at rest.

Welsh continued his work on returning from Boston and boxed six rounds with his sparring partners, showing remarkable speed. Abe Attel says Welsh is one of the best men in the ring to-day, but that an aggressive fighter like Frayne has a chance with him. Abe has promised to return from Pimlico today to second Johnny and coach him on Welsh's weak points.

Manager Gibson has arranged to have Jack Goodman, next ring announcer, which looks like the best match in the Garden right now.

WHY MISS SEARS WANTS TO WEAR 'EM—Next Sunday's AMERICAN contains an interesting discussion of an unusual topic.

GRIFFITHS WORRIED OVER HIS PITCHERS

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—Manager Clark Griffith is a little bit worried about his pitching staff. The Red leader has a couple of pitchers on whom he can depend, but the majority of his men are youngsters who can hardly be expected to pitch winning ball regularly.

If Kreger gets into form soon and Rowan shows that he is able to deliver the goods, this condition will be relieved to some extent, but, until both of these pitchers show, Griff will be on the anxious seat.

Bobby Wade would come in pretty handy just now, but there seems to be no chance of Griff and Spade getting together. Spade, Matheson, Dowlin and Kling are doing the holdout business up right, and every one of these players is missed by his team.

Arthur Fromme is cutting up high jinks in a pitching way this season. Arthur got off to a bad start when he was beaten by the Pirates in the opening game, but has succeeded in smashing things up in a row since, the St. Louis, Pittsburg and Chicago clubs succumbing to his skill and nerve.

Fromme has allowed a total of only 18 hits in the four games in which he has pitched, to average of only four and one-half per game. He has struck out 14 and given only six bases on balls. Of the 18 hits which have been safely three made doubles and three triples.

SOLD OUT FOR JOHNSON BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—There is every indication of large doings on the evening of the 9th instant, when the two Jacks—Johnson, the champion, and Jack O'Brien, who is nursing championship aspirations—come together in a six-round nocturne (maybe that isn't bad) at the National Athletic Club.

When prospective purchasers of tickets for this exclusive function got in line at midnight yesterday morning they were blandly informed that all the "three and five dollar stuff" had been bespoken, and the only consolation vouchsafed them was that some of those who had ordered the tickets when the announcement of the match was first made might not turn up on the 12th, in which event they would be considered in the order of their coming up to the captain's office.

As an evidence of the widespread interest in the coming match it may be stated that Joseph Wildexer rubbed from London for ringside reservations.

Out at the King of Prussia Inn O'Brien has been working faithfully ever since his tussle with Stanley Ketchel, and will enter the ring fit to put up the best he has got in the shop.

It is possible that over an extended route O'Brien might succumb to the superior physical equipment of the colored man and brother, but at the distance, going on Johnson's performance against Burns, O'Brien would come pretty near piling him safe even if he does not outpoint him.

BIG INTEREST IN FELLSWAY RACES

Particular interest pertains to the races of the Fellsway Driving Club at Combination Park to-morrow afternoon, as the members are striving to secure favorable attention in the eyes of the racing committee in having their horses entered in the inter-club match with the Dorchester Driving Club, scheduled for June 17.

With the natural rivalry between the two driving clubs in wanting to take care of the honors, there is a further incentive in winning through a $50 cup having been donated by an admirer of the sport, the same going to the club capturing the most points in the meet.

The trainers at Combination Park are fast filling their stalls with trotters and pacers, many being the property of the Fellsway Driving Club members, in the way showing they are going to leave nothing undone in order to have their horses in the pink of condition for the inter-club races.

The Clothes Shop Opening

¶ The opening of a commercial establishment is not, as a rule, regarded as of much importance outside of its immediate neighborhood; but the opening of the Clothes Shop is of importance to the entire city of Boston, and, indeed, the whole State of Massachusetts. Its aim and the character of its merchandise will gain the same distinction in the public mind here as they have in other large cosmopolitan centers, for be it understood that the Clothes Shop here is the result of the natural growth of a business that has flowered because of the vitality of the idea back of it and the determination of its founders to ereate for their product a place at the very head of producers of fine clothes in this country.

¶ This shop will sell exclusively the clothes made by Ely Meyer & M. C. Simon, in connection with a relatively distinctive grade of men's furnishings.

ELY Meyer & M. C. Simon have established a class of clothes of their very own, as distinct and superior to the ordinary custom tailor's garments as they are distinct and superior to the ordinary ready-made clothes, and if we want proof of this we have only to look in the large cities where they have established shops and note the class of men who are wearing these garments.

¶ Every garment is made in their own tailoring shops in Rochester, N. Y., and typifies the highest order of tailoring, mechanical and artistic.

¶ We extend a cordial invitation to visit the Clothes Shop, and examine the clothes and the furnishings which we have to offer.

¶ Suits $25, $30, $35, $40 and $45.

¶ Overcoats $25, $30, $35, $40 and $45.

¶ All the modish colorings of the best woolens and a distinctive line of men's fine furnishings.

Common Sense and Faith Add to Man's Power

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

THE world is more and more turning away from the old gloomy creeds and becoming metaphysical in its religion.

The name of the new cult is legion.

If does not matter what the name, or the creed, so long as it is based on love for the Creator of all this great universe, and love and good will for humanity.

It is a comfort to meet people who do not talk disease and doubt and despair the whole time. One can endure an occasional reference to the sadder things of earth, but it is painful to be forced into a tete-a-tete with a sailor, or guest, or traveler's acquaintance, who relates nothing but the unhappy episodes of life.

Therefore, we welcome the people who call themselves "New Thoughters" or any other name associated with wholesome ideas of health and happiness and prosperity.

There is, however, a sane and sensible position to take in these matters, which will be of greater assistance to humanity, and to one's particular creed, than the more illogical and extreme standards taken by many. For instance, however, absolutely you may believe in the power of the spirit to dominate all conditions, it is well for you to keep in mind the fact that you eat and drink to sustain life. So long as you do this, and so long as you wear clothing, you are still acknowledging the existence of a body.

The Existence of a Body.

The spirit is, of course, the only thing which endures; it passes from one tenement to another, through many incarnations until it finally does away with the need of any more tenements, and becomes "one with God" again, as it was in the beginning and shall be, world without end.

Nevertheless, while you move and have being with mortal men, clothed in garments to protect you from the elements, and eating and drinking to sustain life, it is ostensibly ridiculous and illogical to talk about being "nothing but a spirit."

If with the consciousness of your divine spirit you can keep your complexion free from lines and moth patches, and your hair free from the parasites which cause decay, it is well; otherwise do not be afraid to use a little cold cream and massage your epidermis, or a little ointment for your scalp. You are but feeding hungry pores, just as you feed your hungry body to keep yourself from starvation. Be logical.

Don't Be a Slave to Food Fads

Not until we grow wings can we afford to ignore the fact that we have feet, and they were meant to tread upon earth. So long as no one can drink carbolic acid, and not suffer the agonies of death, we must try to be sufficiently logical to realize that some foods are more or less nutritious than others.

To be a slave to the food faddists is an extreme; to declare all food equally good and equally harmless in its effects is another extreme.

To be a slave to anything, even one's own illogical idea of freedom, is a misfortune and will hinder the greater growth and development.

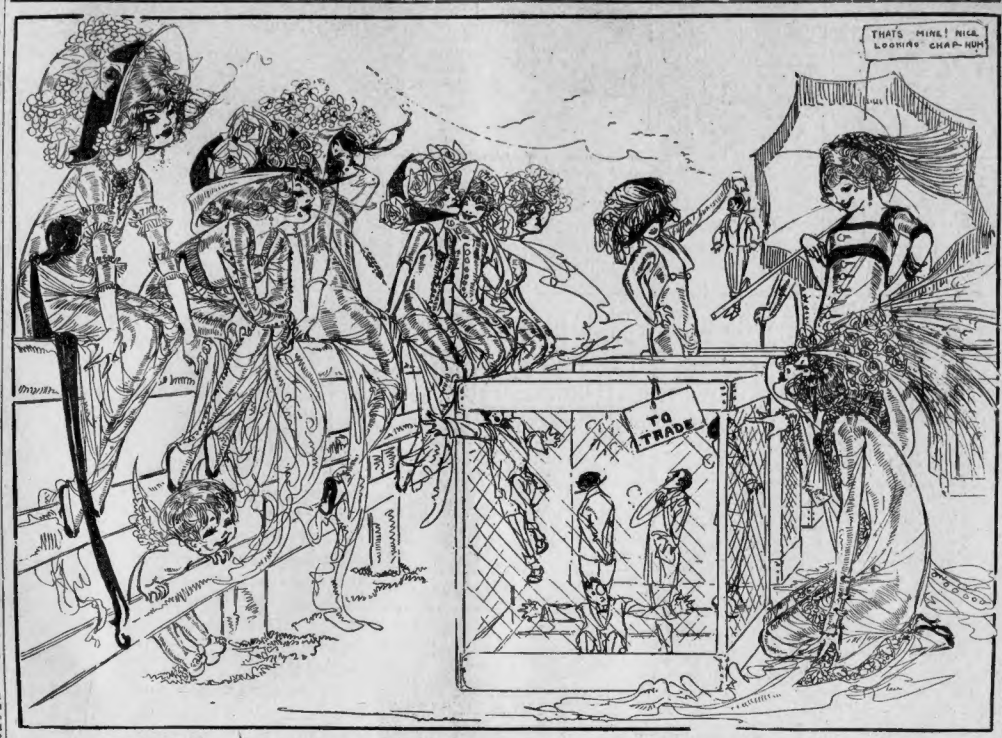
The man who has attained the highest and best development for this plane of existence will cease to crave unwholesome foods and drinks; he will know there are things he should not eat or drink, and he will cease to want them.

He will not ignore his body, but will prize it as the outer casket of his spirit. A woman, knowing she is dependent upon food for the continuance of life in her body, will not hesitate to accept other aids from material methods to preserve her physical powers and charms.

He who wishes to become a power for good on earth must combine common sense with great faith.

Neither one alone can do all.

IF BOSTON HELD A HUSBAND FAIR---By NELL BRINKLEY



"And the nifty Bettys of old Boston would squat on the fence and talk pigeon talk, as they do when the pussy cats and dogs are on show"

EVERY Spring, in May, the blossom-month, when the warm Earth-mother of us has just left her dressing table with the last dab of powder on her nose, newly perfumed, fresh-frocked, with clean hands and elbows—(she's an artist, the Mother Earth, and as the Summer months wear along they'll get smudgier and smudgier—the arms, and the hands, and the fresh frock)—well, when she's licked a half-moon of court-plaster and patted it under her eye, and smoothed down her skirt and started across the world, they hold a Husbaid Fair in Belgium!

Fall is the time for fairs—for pumpkins and cabbage-heads and peaches—but everybody knows that it's in the Spring "that young folks' fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love"—so they changed the fair time for husbands to May.

Over there in the Belgian country the Husband Fair is luncheon, and champagne, and fireworks, and balls, and the girls toast the bachelors till the sun comes up!

If they made a Husband Fair in Boston what would it be like, I wonder?

Maybe this—a regular proper horse show, with the poor chaps behind wire net in a nice straight line in the sawdust ring. And the nifty Bettys of this old Boston town would squat on the fence and chew straws—(or maybe smoke, these ultra-horsey ones)—and chatter; and sometimes two'd pick out the same Billy, and then they'd pull the court-plasters and the earrings off each other. And they'd chatter and have tea in between times, and they'd hunker down like they do to the pussy-cats and the baked-apple faced dogs, when they're on show, and coo in Pigeon-talk, "Oh, you sweet slug—Oom-m-m-m-m, I could dea eat oo." And they'd poke them with their fringed parasols and feed them bon-bons.

And then, too, of course, there'd be a heap of little kid-girls, young and fresh, who'd never had any man before—but I have a think there'd be a heap who'd bring their husbands under their pretty arms with a blue ribbon around his neck and put him up for trade while she went around and picked out another amiable lady's husband!

Plan to Save Daylight and Millions

The diagrams show the hours of darkness and daylight and normal sleep on April 18 under the present system, and what they would be under the daylight saving bill.

THE "Daylight-Saving Bill," which recently passed its second reading in the English House of Commons, and which may become a law, is exciting much comment among the people of England.

The scheme originated with William Willet, and the bill introduced proposes that, by act of Parliament, the clock shall be advanced one hour on the third Sunday in April of each year and set back an hour on the third Sunday in September each year.

By this method it is calculated that 210 hours of daylight, which are now wasted, would be saved. With this saving would come another saving of $15,000,000 a year on artificial light, as a greater proportion of sleep would come in hours of darkness, and of work in natural light.

A GILDED YOUTH

"I believe I'll go in for ballooning a bit. It seems to be the thing."

"What kind of a balloon shall you buy?"

"Oh, I'll have a touring affair, a cloud-climber, a balloonette, and light flyabout for town use."

The Average Man

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

AT breakfast he peruses news, and vows the nation will
Be swept to dread destruction by the Senate tariff bill.
He bangs the table with his fists, and righteously declares:
"Men ought to take an interest in political affairs.
Why let a pack of trust-owned crooks conduct our Government
And burden us with taxes till they sap our utmost cent?
Men ought to think; they ought to vote; they ought to keep awake!
How base it is to trifle when their liberty's at stake!"

At evening when the paper boy comes tossing at his door
He rushes forth excitedly and cries, "Say, what's the score?"

NEXT day when riding down to work he growls: "The income tax
Would pass a Congress not composed of hopeless maniacs;
But what can we expect when we still sit demurely by
And let a lot of scoundrels cut the legislative pie?
Why will men waste their precious time when duty points the way
To rise and free our humble necks from the oppressor's sway?
Why not take some real interest in concerns of consequence,
Instead of dawdling our best hours in utter indolence?"

Arriving at his office, he debates till nearly noon
That subscribing topic: "Can old Jeffries lick the coon?"

TRILBY IN REAL LIFE—Graphic story in next Sunday's AMERICAN.

To-day's Best Story

A SERGEANT who was very short was drilling a squad of recruits, among whom was an Irishman who was very tall.

The sergeant had several times spoken to him about not carrying his head erect. At last, in desperation, the sergeant went up to him and, reaching up, placed his head in the desired position.

Says Pat: "In this where I have to keep my head all the time?"

"Certainly it is!" replied the sergeant.

"Then begorra, Sergeant," says Pat, "I'll have to say 'Goodby' to you, for I'll never see you any more!"

Advice to the Lovelorn

NO HARM IN GOING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a member of a club of girls and boys whose ages range from fifteen to nineteen. During the Winter, some of the girls have given the club socials, serving refreshments and arranging games, etc. Now, one of the boys wishes to give us a gathering. His older sisters will be present part of the evening. Kindly let me know whether it will be proper for me to go to my sister does not think so?

SCHOOLGIRL.

THERE is not the least harm in your going if your mother knows and approves of your doing so. The boy's sisters will chaperon the party, and possibly his mother also.

USE YOUR OWN JUDGMENT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been acquainted with a young lady for the past few years. I have taken her to a few places of amusement and have given her a few trifles. At last I have grown to love her dearly, and I think she has all the qualities that make a good wife and mother. She has had a friend for many years. He was very attentive to her, and rumor had it that they would be engaged when he was able to provide properly for her. Now I find that he is engaged to another lady. My friend has always had, and still has, the highest admiration for this young man, and thinks a good deal of his ability. He has known her more years than I have and has better insight to her character and habits than I. Do you think he has disproved some faults in her makeup that I cannot see? I have the highest opinion of his judgment, and wonder if, after all, I am not making a mistake in attempting to gain her love when a man of my friend's judgment chose another in preference. We are both in receipt of an income of $1,200 a year, with excellent prospects of getting a good deal more. Do you think it is enough to support a wife, living as I do in the suburbs?

E. J.

HE did not happen to fall in love with her, that is all. His mother admires her greatly, and value her friendship highly, and yet not fall in love with her. It would be a sad state of affairs if all men fell in love with the same woman. Surely you will not allow the fact that he does not love her to prevent you from loving her. That would be wicked-minded and foolish. Go ahead, and if you love her ask her to marry you. You have ample means to support a wife.

HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO SPANK THIS BABY? Read next Sunday's AMERICAN and find out.

Percival Was Clever in His Explanations

By KENNETT HARRIS

PENELOPE'S eyes were big with the horror of the thought, and her little hand tightened within Percival's clasp.

"Suppose we had never met!" she said in a half whisper.

Percival is sometimes a little slow about rising to an occasion. All he said in response was "Um-m-m-m-m-m!" It was meant to be the equivalent of "What indeed!" but it was not satisfactory to Penelope.

"Wouldn't it have been awful, darling?" said Penelope.

"It certainly would have," sweetheart," said Percival.

Penelope thought that over a little and then: "What would you have done?" she asked.

"Search——" began Percival, and then becoming suddenly conscious of the nefariousness of the question, checked himself. "Searched through the world for you until I found you," he said, happily.

Her Question Was a Foser

"How sweet of you!" said Penelope. "But really this isn't an answer to my question," she continued. "If you had never met me, you wouldn't have known that there was any one to look for, and consequently you wouldn't have looked for me and you wouldn't have found me. You would have fallen in love with some other girl now, wouldn't you?"

"Well," Percival admitted, "I suppose I might have. And you would probably have become engaged to some other fellow."

"I would not!"

"What are you taking your hand away for?"

"I'm tired of keeping it in that position. Who would you have chosen?"

"I don't know," answered Percival.

"Who do you think you'd have picked?"

Penelope's eyes flashed. "I wouldn't have picked anybody," she asserted with indignation. "I told you I wouldn't. I suppose you would have fallen in love with Charlotte Smetter."

"Not in a thousand years," said Percival, emphatically.

"You liked her very much—you know you did."

"That Charlotte Smetter"

"Now, what's the use of going into all that again?" remonstrated Percival. "You know there wasn't anything to it. I've told you so over and over."

"Please don't," said Penelope, forbiddingly. "I wish you wouldn't do that, Charlotte Smetter may like that sort of thing, but I don't."

"Why, Penelope!" said Percival. "Listen——"

"I think you're mere yourself perfectly clear," said Penelope, coldly. "I am a sort of an accident. If I hadn't happened to strike your fancy somebody else would have and you'd have been just as well satisfied."

"Now, you just listen to me," said Percival. "When I said I had never been in love with some other girl I was speaking literally, and for the sake of argument, not according to my convictions."

"I would have been married. I would have remained solitary to the end if I had never met you. How do I know? Because I never loved before, but the moment I saw you I knew that I had met the one and only girl for me. And you reproach me; you repel me and say cruel, wounding things to me——"

"Well, why didn't you say all that when I first asked you?" said Penelope. "Are you quite sure, though, that you didn't like Charlotte Smetter very, very much?"

FICTION

The Journal of a Neglected Wife

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.
The wife in the story, after fortune of confession, has come to certainty that some other woman has won her husband's love. She has detected perfume on his coat sleeve and shoulder. She has found an unsigned note to her husband in a woman's handwriting. She has found a new photograph of Horace, her husband, of which he had told her nothing, and which he vaguely explains that he had taken for the Lawyers' Association. She has resorted to every artifice to preserve her beauty and youthfulness. She has been torn for months by agonies of doubt as to whether she will be able to revive his love for her, or whether the unknown rival she hates will lure his farther and farther from her.

Unable longer to endure suffering in silence and inaction, she decides to follow her husband and find out who "she" is, and secures a strange costume, hat and heavy veil as a disguise.

Shadowing her husband from the time he leaves his office, she hears his phone his own house that he is "detained by business;" then phones the "other woman" that he will be "right out." She follows him to a subway train, and when he leaves the train follows until she sees him enter a handsome apartment building.

She does not pursue the search further. She shrinks from seeing her rival, knowing the woman who has won her husband's love must be young and beautiful.

September 25.

I'M THE more I cling to him, the more I show my need of him, the farther away he seems. . . . In some subtle way I feel that he is drawing back." Those words of Edith Carrington's have been haunting me all day. I feel that in them are held most of the tragedies of women's lives.

September 24.

A CYNICALLY clever man once told me that to every one some sort of "prop" was necessary.

The strongest, he said, was religion; the others were love, work, whiskey. His, he said, was whiskey; that it was the most reliable. Women, he claimed, first tried love; when that failed them they turned either to religion or drink.

Perhaps they do; but does either give them healing for a broken heart?

CHAPTER VII.

2 a. m., September 26th.

I CANNOT sleep. It is torture to lie there thinking—thinking. Perhaps it will help me to write.

It is horrible to have to "fight" for sleep as I do now night after night. One after another I try all the means, the tricks I have ever heard of that are said to induce sleep. I count thousands, repeat the alphabet backward, picture innumerable sheep jumping over a fence, repeat all the poems I have ever memorized—until my brain reels from exhaustion, and at last I sink into a sort of stupor.

One method is to think of objects disconnectedly—to name things rapidly, things that are entirely foreign to each other, as desk, wine, mountain, cathedral, sign, pear, clock, etc. It is the confusion and weariness that this causes that finally bring sleep.

But there are nights when, try as I will, I cannot keep my mind on any of these methods. After a few moments' effort I find myself back thinking of her—always of her.

The sounds of the night! They may not be sad in themselves, but for me, as I lie listening through the long, sleepless hours, they have come to have an indescribable mournfulness.

The hoarse shriek of distant ferry-boats, long-drawn-out like the cry of some tortured, wild thing, the sound of dragging hoofs of weary cab horses, the faint rumble of the elevated, and always in the background, if one listens intently, comes that subdued night whimper of the city—the great, seething city—which even in its sleep is restless and murmurous.

September 27th.

HOW strange a thing is love! There has never been a moment in all these fifteen years of our married life that I have not loved Horace deeply, completely.

And yet for the last ten years up to a year ago, my love had become a quiet, contented affection.

In these years I did not pick up his clothes, his brushes, his gloves, and kiss them as I did in the first few years, and as I do now.

I did not wait for his coming with throbbing pulse and flushed cheeks, and thrill at his slightest touch, as I did in the first few years, and as I do now.

The constant companionship of so many years had taken away that feverish intensity and brought in its place a deep, quiet contentment. But now—now that I feel I am losing him—all the intensity, all the feverishness of our early love has returned. I love him now as I loved him in the first year of our marriage.

Oh, how strange it all is—and how pitiful! Why should life ordain things so?

September 28th.

THE horror of these long evenings alone is eating into my very soul. Alone—alone—always alone! It has come to be more than a sense of desolation; there are times when I am filled with a haunting dread, a fear, a nameless terror of I know not what.

Oh, Horace, if you knew what I suffered you would not leave me so alone—you could not, even though you no longer love me; your very humanity would make you want to help me.

A Song

By WILLIAM JOHNSON CORY

Off, earlier shall the rosebuds blow,
To after years, those happier years
And children weep, when lie we low;
Far fewer tears, far softer tears.

Oh, true shall boyish laughter ring,
Like tinkling chimes, in kindler times;
And merrier shall the ankles spring
And I not there, and I not there.

Like lightning in the Summer night
Their mirth shall be, so quick and free;
And, oh! the flash of their delight
I shall not see, I may not see.

In deeper dream, with wider range,
These eyes shall shine, but not on mine;
Unmoved, unblest by worldly change,
The dead must rest, the dead shall rest.

Smiles

THE rattling of silver spoons awakened the lady in the dead of night.

"Who's there?" she cried, as she leaned over the balustrade and peered down into the darkness.

"Who's there, and what are you doing in my house at this hour?"

The stranger in the dining room replied with startling candor:

"Bill Sykes, ma'am, at your service." And, gathering as much of the letter as he could, he fled. • • •

"There's one thing," he said, jeeringly, "men never get together and talk about one another the way the women do."

"No," she answered, "I don't think they do. There is nothing interesting to say about them."

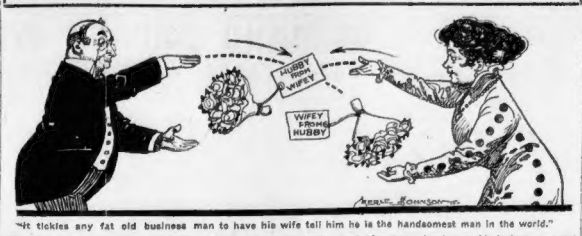
MAN'S NEED OF SYMPATHY

By DOROTHY DIX



"It tickles any fat old business man to have his wife tell him he is the handsomest man in the world."

ONE of the most frequent complaints that married women make is that their husbands do not understand them and have no sympathy for them. Their grievance is that most men think they have done their full duty as husbands when they provide their wives with food, and shelter, and clothes.

Undoubtedly all of this is only too true, but it is worth while reminding women that matrimonial indifference and neglect are not monopolized by husbands.

Husbands Hunger for Love, Too.

Women devote so much time to considering their own emotions that they forget that men have feelings, too; yet there are probably just as many hungry hearted men in the world as there are hungry hearted women.

The woman, in ordinary circumstances, laments that her life is dull and monotonous, a dreary grind of housework and caring for children, and caring for children and housework. If she only knew it, her husband's existence is not a hilarious picnic either.

The one thing that can compensate the man for his life of slavery, just as the one thing that can compensate the woman, is love, and appreciation, and understanding and sympathy at home.

Woman understands this, and is insistent enough upon collecting this debt from the husband, and cries out loudly enough when he refuses to pay, but, strangely enough, she ignores her own obligations to him.

Perhaps the women think that their husbands are so strong that they do not need tenderness, but no man on earth is strong where the woman he loves is concerned. He may be as cold as ice, and as hard as iron to others, but he wants her to treat him like a baby, to pet and coddle him and talk to him the little foolish nothings that women babble to those they love.

Nor is any man so self-contained that he does not yearn to talk over his plans, his hopes and ambitions with his wife. He wants her interests that never flags over a twice-told tale. He wants her understanding of the fight that he is making, her appreciation of his intelligence and endurance, her belief in his success, her admiration of his ability.

There are women who get so absorbed in society, who get so crazy over bridge or who become so obsessed in their children that they lose all interest apparently in their husbands. They listen with a distracted attention while he talks, and they breathe a sigh of relief when he retires to his paper of an evening or goes off to the club; and yet they consider themselves good wives.

In reality they are failures as wives, just as the man is a failure as a husband whose every real thought and interest is given to his business or career, to the exclusion of his wife.

Say what you like about duty, it is a pretty hard thing for a man to spend his years from youth to age toiling for the support of a woman who never even bothers what he does for her, who never says one word of thanks, who never flings one bouquet of praise at him, and who sniffs, likely as not, at the very occupation that provides her with bread and jam or truffles and champagne. Yet how often is that the only reward that a poor, hump-shouldered man gets for all his labor and sacrifices?

Tell Her She's 'Got 'Em All Beat'

Women, who are so sensitive on this subject of being understood and appreciated, should put the shoe on the other foot for awhile and try to find out if they are doing their part in the understanding and appreciating line.

Masculine nature is not different from feminine, and it will tickle any fat old business man to as much for his wife to tell him that he is the handsomest man in the world to her as it will any middle-aged lady for her husband to inform her that in his eyes she has got Lillian Russell beat a city block in looks. It will please any husband just as much to have his wife turn license before him as it will her for him to light the joss stick for her benefit.

BUCKET HAT SAVES DOROTHY AMES AT HER VERY FIRST BALL GAME

By DOROTHY AMES.

I'll have to confess to the very first place that our education has been sadly neglected—in only one particular, of course, and that is—that I had never—no never—been to a baseball game.

After I had asked a number of questions "the man who took me" looked desperate and proceeded to draw a diagram with a whole lot of diamonds and bases and plates and outfields and so on in it, and when I asked the simplest questions about the plays and why the people were yelling, he just looked bored and said:

"I simply can't explain those things. You just have to watch the play and see for yourself."

The crowd was howling and shouting like mad and I just had to know that it was all about.

"What happened then?" I implored.

"New York muffed it," fairly shouted "the man who took me."

"What if they did?" I rejoined.

"Oh! you're certainly a joke!" was all the answer I received.

Evidently "the man who took me" felt sorry, because he started in again along this style.

"Now you see New York has one man on third base and one man on first."

"Well, what good does that do? The man on third will get home first anyway," said I.

And "the man who took me" just simply gazed off into vacancy without reply.

After a moment he turned him sayi:

"We'll start in all over again. You see this man was on third base and so forth and so forth—Don't you see?"

"No. I don't see. I still had spirit enough to reply.

"Well, you'll just have to watch the plays, that's all." This with a positively threatening air.

To think that such a gentlemanly young man could be such a bear! ! !

"There," he answered.

"Well, that's a brilliant remark." I was glad of the opportunity to do the squelching for a change.

"Well, if you'll let me finish, I was going to say so that they would get there before the ball does."

I couldn't for the life of me see what good getting there before the ball would do.

"Say! do you know the difference between a base hit and a catcher's mask?" I inquired my escort pleasantly, at the end of the first game. "There is a difference, you know."

But I refused to joke about the subject and just watched the people eat squares of ice cream and peanuts and popcorn and drink different colored tonics until the second game started. The second game was a ripping good game. Even with my inexperience I could appreciate that.

All of a sudden the whole crowd just seemed to go wild. The men jumped up in their seats and tossed their hats and didn't seem to care where they landed. Suddenly I realized what he'd done and he sure did look most terribly disconcerted.

Saw a Double Play.

Naturally, being present and being a woman and being more or less of an eternal question mark anyway, I asked what it was all about.

"A double play." was the answer. And then he explained:

"New York had a man on first, second and third base and the fourth New York man at the bat knocked out the right field and the three men attempted to run home, and by rapid play on the part of Boston two New York men were put out."

Now, it was awfully kind of him to explain and I appreciated it immensely, but I knew just as much about it before he told me as I did afterward.

But I am going to a lot more baseball games and I'm going to learn, if it takes a whole season. And when I get one of those things they call a husband I'm going to stipulate in the marriage contract that he go to a baseball game once a week, or I'll always have that wonderful spark of enthusiasm and that element of the boy in him that a baseball game keeps young.

SOCIETY

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

It was decidedly interesting, the discussion I overheard yesterday regarding Boston's social leader, and set me to thinking. Ou whose shapely shoulders would the mantle of leadership fall in Boston society should Mrs. "Jack" Gardner abdicate the throne and go to live for an indefinite time in Europe?

Of course, it's but a rumor, but it has been said that the brilliant Queen of Fenway Court may decide upon such a procedure. In that case, really who is there among all our "grande dames" qualified to wield the social sceptre with such consummate art and compelling power as she whom the great artist, Sargent, has glorified in painting as "Woman—A Mystery?"

Those who have felt most her sway acknowledge that it is a certain subtle quality of mystery in her that has given Mrs. Gardner the unique social supremacy which she has enjoyed so long and which she would, no doubt, continue to enjoy even in foreign lands.

It must be admitted that no other women in Boston society possesses in any marked degree the dominating qualities that have distinguished the "lady of the veil"—and the inevitable bunch of violets —who so thoroughly enjoys her peculiar prestige.

There are many, of course, who could excel her in the art of dressing, but who is there who could adequately fill her place as social arbiter in the exclusive circle of fashionable existence, which here, as nowhere else, is ironclad and unassailable as the most impregnable fortress—not to be opened even with the golden key of fabulous wealth?

One might suggest as possibilities Mrs. Bryce Allen, whose palatial home on Beacon street is the scene of so many brilliant hospitalities, and who is a leading spirit at the subscription assemblies which represent the high water mark of society each season, or Mrs. Guy Norman, who queens it in Washington the greater part of each Winter, Mrs. Roger Welcott who is a member of the fine old Prescott family and who is noted for her brilliancy and charm, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Mrs. Oliver Ames and a few others—in line for the honor which must be bought with the very bluest blood of Boston.

BUSINESS MEN BACK, PLEASED WITH RESULTS

The Chamber of Commerce special train, on which 120 of Boston's prominent business men have been touring New Hampshire and Maine cities and towns, arrived at the North Station at 7:25 to-day from Bangor, where the last of the meetings with officials and Board of Trade members was held last night.

It was an enthusiastic and decidedly pleased company of Boston merchants that alighted from the train, all of them confident that the trip means much in the future for the promotion of Boston's trade with the rest of New England and much for the interest of metropolitan Boston.

In all 626 miles were traveled, and city and town officials and Boards of Trade members were addressed in Portsmouth, in New Hampshire, and in nine cities and towns in Maine.

Bernard J. Rothwell spoke at every meeting, and so did James J. Storrow, until business demands summoned him yesterday to Boston.

As a result of the trip, Boston's business men will be in closer touch with the producers of the rich territory in Maine. A New England business men's association is promised as a result of the trip, that will include the governors of New England States, legislative presiding officers, mayors of cities and officers of Boards of Trade. This Boston, with its new association of business men, may be kept in close touch with the official and business interests of all New England. A trip through western Massachusetts and Vermont is next contemplated by the Chamber of Commerce.

BOSTON CITY CLUB REPEATS MINSTRELS

The question at the Boston City Club to-day is how to let in all the people who saw the club show last night and who wish to see it over again to-night, in addition to various ones who couldn't go last night and are bound to be there to-night anyhow. Among the soloists who made hits were Messrs. Herrington, Cahill, Abney and Butler in the opening minstrel part. Then there was the versical josh, "The Charge of the Light Brigade." They say "Jimmy" McKibben wrote it. And there were no end of gags relative to the illuminating episode of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company and Brother James Richards, who sells gas, and other lighting subtleties. Representative Norman H. White forgot his troubles with the senative Senate long enough to do a buck and wing dance, Leon Van Vlet gave two cello solos.

Probably the most continuous laughter was caused by J. Frank Davis's skit, "Boom it," which hit off both politics. Louis C. Newhall as Husband A. George looked more like Vice George A. Hibbard than the Mayor does himself. Other municipal celebrities were likewise caricatured. Mr. Davis had to make a little talk of thanks at the end of the skit.

HYPNOTISM IS ODD PLEA OF POLICEMAN

PITTSFIELD, May 7.—That a brother officer, whom he accuses of having offered a bribe, also hypnotized him and made him attend a conference at an attorney's office, was the statement of Patrolman Dennis E. Condon, on trial before the Board of Aldermen on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer. The man alleged to have offered the bribe is under fire by the Board of Aldermen. In his statement to the board Condon declared that shortly after he had refused the offer of a bribe the man who made the offer called on him at his home and hypnotized him into going to an attorney's office.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

AMALGAMATED LOCAL LEADER

STATE STREET—Under the leadership of Amalgamated the local market again showed strength, although more or less profit-taking ensued, which caused a temporary halt. Amalgamated rose over two points from yesterday's closing to 82¼.

The improvement in the metal market is now generally acknowledged and stocks of copper on hand are being reduced.

Other Market Features.

Calumet & Hecla made a sharp jump of $20, going up to $635 on a very slight demand. Boston Consolidated touched 15¾, Butte Coalition 27⅝ and Greene-Cananea moved up to 11⅜. North Lake was an active stock, opening at 8¾ and advancing to 9. North Butte acted contrarywise and fell off a point to 67½. It is now believed that the stock is being manipulated to facilitate insiders to purchase stock sold at a much higher level. U. S. Steel crossed 57. Giroux Consolidated has been put on the unlisted department of the exchange. There are 1,500,000 shares, par $5. Five hundred thousand shares are for the conversion of bonds now outstanding.

The Curb Features.

The better class of stocks had the floor on the Curb Exchange, while those of lesser value were firm, but quiet. Davis-Daly rose ⅝ to 6⅝. This company has over $400,000 treasury cash and is spending about $30,000 per month in development work. Cumberland Ely suffered to 7⅞, in spite of the 6 15-16, and First National to 93-16.

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, May 7.—More cheerful news came from Washington to the effect that the tariff bill is certain to get through both houses early in June. This caused a renewal of buying throughout the list. The information was alleged to come from a mutual friend of President Taft and Senator Aldrich.

$ $ $

Another encouraging fact is the placing of one order for 60,000 tons of steel rails by the St. Paul Railroad Company, promptly followed by other orders and advances of steel prices. Expectation is that a material advance in all steel prices will be announced within a few days, as the companies are overwhelmed with orders. The fact that the steel Trust has not attempted to ruin Independents in the fight for business this time does not yet come to sell stocks. They feel that the market will continue to advance at least until Congress adjourns. They may not sell on bulges, but even that is not yet decided, for should the bulges be too severe, then another boom will be founded upon the tariff.

$ $ $

The government report on Winter wheat will be out to-morrow. Those who have discounted it pretty thoroughly when the price shot up to the high record. Wall Street is not afraid of this report, because everybody knows Winter wheat will be a short crop. Every farmer knows that an abundance of water in the Spring means an inadequate dry crop, so that now, since warm weather has come again, the agriculturists are happy. It is impossible to be diversified in the United States and farmers are so well educated in this respect that failure of crops that is failure is a practical impossibility, except under extraordinary weather conditions. Extraordinary weather, earthquakes, sun spots can never be provided against by any human agency, and the Wall Street seasons can never be provided against by any human agency, and the Wall Street science. Any person reviewing the stock market to-day must in honesty admit that the outlook is cheerful. The government crop report will be ignored if it is bad, and if it will advance the stock market if it is better than expected.

$ $ $

Bankers believe grains are too high and the belief is shown by the demand of not less than 20 cents margin on all loans. Wall Street is not afraid of this demand. On no option will more than $1 a bushel be required, so neither May nor July wheat is put. This is not so much a question of the ability to really corner grain, but of caution against the possible presentation of a corpse and the disinterring of bodies.

Hence the Chicago trader's attitude is the right one, and the present impression is not rather than learned. He is entirely willing to buy on bulges in the grain markets. Some tag-end selling of Union Pacific, no doubt, has occurred, and the list of profit-taking took place in several of the specialties, but the underlying sentiment of the market was more than equal to the offers.

$ $ $

Cheap money is, of course, at the bottom of the whole situation. Those who think the market is on the verge of a severe decline argue that the revival of business will soon withdraw money from Wall street, but they seem to forget the $500,000,000 of steel and railroad currency that the Aldrich law provides. This can be used as soon as the call rate approaches 3 per cent, or even sooner if the Secretary of the Treasury will permit it.

$ $ $

St. Paul's big order for rails was only the beginning of a series of orders that will fill the steel companies and the railroad equipment concerns full of business before the Summer is half over. A car building company reports an unusual number of inquiries, and the next few weeks will probably break all records for the placing of orders by railroad companies.

$ $ $

Southern Pacific continued to show the evidence of investment buying in both the common and preferred issues. Rock Island common and preferred are being absorbed in preparation for a 4 per cent dividend some time this year, and perhaps sooner than the Street expects. The talk of giving the common full voting power is renewed again, the report being that James Speyer did the recent financing for the system only on condition that this would be done.

$ $ $

Bears are trying to make capital out of the attempt of Senator Bailey to amend the Hepburn rate law so as to compel the sale by the railroads of their coal properties. There is no possible chance of this attempt succeeding, and if it did it would be an argument for higher prices of all railroads interested because it would force a horizontal advance in the price of coal and every other commodity affected. Prices are high enough now and Congress will hardly favor any plan to put them higher.

$ $ $

Those who fear that a decision against the coal roads might break the prices of coal shares have an illustration in Western Maryland of what might have happened in Reading. Under the Supreme Court decision the Western Maryland is compelled to sell its coal at the mine, and it is organizing a selling agency. Instead of breaking, the price of the stock advanced $5 a share. Lackawanna threatens to advance to 1,000 any minute, and there is confident talk in some quarters of an increase of the Reading dividend next month, although no person is authority will admit the possibility.

$ $ $

Rubber stocks attracted attention. The first preferred seems to be an established 8 per cent. dividend payer. The second preferred will undoubtedly pay its dividend next Autumn, and the common has been selling out of line with other shares. The rubber business is well organized and is very prosperous, sales for the first quarter of the current year being reported as double those of the same period last year.

$ $ $

Amalgamated Copper made a strong bid for popularity by crossing eighty on large transactions. There are doubts that the company is trying to get control of the Boston Consolidated. Boston Consolidated continues strong, and the only visible reason for the advance of Amalgamated is an attempt to make it move in harmony with other stocks.

COPPER AND STEEL HIGHER

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, May 7.—New high records for the present movement were made during the early trading in Wall street to-day. Steel shares and copper issues were the strong features, with gains of from one to two points throughout the list. Steel preferred surprised the street when, after selling at dividend 1¾ points, it regained almost the entire dividend within half an hour after the beginning of business. The common advanced to 57⅜.

A bad feature of the steel situation was the announcement from Alabama that the Ensley plant of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company was practically closed, owing to the lack of orders.

A boom in the copper shares was the feature of trading in London. In the New York market the steel shares and the Harriman shares were prominent.

CARRIS WINS RELIABILITY MOTOR TEST

By J. C. KERRISON.

HARRISBURG, Pa., May 7.—C. S. Carris and the air-cooled Franklin captured the reliability contest of the Motor Club of Harrisburg, which was unquestionably the hardest test that has been experienced for years. Carris finished with a destructive lead over all others, his road and mechanical examination being passed with others. He was penalized ten points on road work, and two points in the technical examination, the same for a slight break in the lead of the front fenders.

Walter White finished second in the same class, his all-point technical penalization being for a broken front fender. A Pullman car won Class B, with a Maxwell second, both cars receiving road penalization. The big Peerless runabout carried off the honors in its class, while a second Pullman did likewise in the light runabout class.

The last day of the test was by far the best of the four, everything being in good proper. The cars worked admirably, only two failing to arrive at every control on time, while seven did more or less work on the road, this work being mainly on tires.

The technical examination, which was completed shortly after midnight, brought out many interesting things and proved a veritable surprise to those who had watched the run. It was naturally expected that after one hard day's work Tuesday and Wednesday there would be a great slipping of cars, but as a rule the clutches were all in good shape.

Furthermore, the ignition systems were good and in proper working order. There was not one instance of leaky connections, and might here be noted the troubles. The greatest penalties were enforced for bent and broken springs and such. There was but one bent front axle among the ten cars.

The greatest penalization was awarded the Velie runabout, but that is not surprising considering what the car went through better turned completely over one day. That she should finish the run in the excellent condition in which she did speaks volumes. The final standing of the cars follows:

BANK RULING MODIFIED.

Judge Braley in the Supreme Court today modified the injunction restraining the Boston Banking Company from doing business to the extent of allowing the company to collect small amounts due it. The case was continued until next Tuesday for a hearing.

IF THESE LAWS PASS—Every woman will want to read this article in next Sunday's AMERICAN and see what might happen to her.

A Demonstration of the Lighting in Copley Square

Tonight at 7:45 and at 8:15

By permission of the City Authorities, the Edison Company has arranged to make a comparison between the Gilbert arc lamps, which have lighted Copley Square for a number of years and the General Electric flaming arc lamps just installed.

The Square is now lighted by three large flaming arc lamps, costing $468 per year. These lamps replace seven Gilbert arc lamps which have cost $828 per year.

At 7:45 p. m. and again at 8:15 p. m. the flaming arc lamps will be turned out for five minutes and the old Gilbert lamps lighted, so that the public may compare them.

Heretofore the plaza in Berlin, facing the Brandenburger Gate, which is equipped with electric, flaming arc lamps, has been considered the best lighted square in the world. It is celebrated throughout Europe.

Copley Square is now lighted at a greatly reduced cost, yet it has more than twice as much light as when the Gilbert lamps were used.

It is now better lighted than is Brandenburger Square in Berlin, and Boston's Own Copley Square is now the best lighted square in the world.

The Lighting Contract and the Publicity from It

Whether the electric lighting contract which Mayor Hibbard has just signed is the BEST contract that could have been made for the city may be open to discussion. But the Mayor and Superintendent of Streets Emerson apparently acted in GOOD FAITH. They made what they believed was the best contract for the city. By his original delay the Mayor has saved the city approximately $150,000.

In the discussion that has followed the signing of the contract there has come forth NO EVIDENCE TO PROVE COLLUSION WITH THE ELECTRIC LIGHTING COMPANY OR EVIDENCE OF FRAUD ANYWHERE. The contract having been made, therefore, in good faith, and no evidence of fraud or connivance appearing, the city is bound to stand by the Mayor's action.

But in the wake of this discussion there are several important points for the citizen to consider. The first is THE POWER OF PUBLICITY. The electric lighting company has boldly gone before the people of Boston and over its own signature given facts and figures and a very technical explanation of the whole matter, so that the people may know EXACTLY what has been done by the electric lighting company.

Mr. Emerson's statements have also been voluminous, and, while technical, they have seemed to cover his side of the case very fully. The gas company is yet to be heard from.

This PUBLICITY is very excellent. It has set people to THINKING. It has taught a splendid lesson to other public service corporations that the just and proper thing to do is to take the public into their confidence at once. And each corporation ought to make its explanation over its own signature so clear that there can be no misunderstanding of the case in dispute.

The Interborough Railroad Company in New York is making the same sort of publicity campaign that the electric lighting company is making in Boston. The public has a right to know all the facts, at first hand.

There is in the display of facts by the electric lighting company a splendid ARGUMENT FOR THE REFERENDUM. The only regrettable thing is that the electric lighting company did not make its appeal to the citizens of Boston BEFORE the contract was signed, INSTEAD OF AFTER. If the citizens of Boston are competent to form their own opinions on the electric lighting contract, why are they not competent to form their own opinions on the charter as well?

Without going into the merits of the contract in dispute, the LESSON for the citizen to learn is that he should insist upon having all the facts in every important case presented to him before any action is taken by the city government. That is the path of safety, honesty and decency.

An Unseemly Scramble at a Grave

Is it not about time that the evening newspapers of Boston ceased their scramble for the intangible asset left by the Evening Herald when that newspaper calmly stepped into the tomb and closed the door behind it forever?

It is something new in the ethics of journalism to see such a struggle as is now engaged in by the evening newspapers to seize upon the effects left by a former comrade. Each of the newspapers engaged in the tussle claims that it is the only real legatee. All are crying their wares up and down the cemetery bypaths even before the flowers have withered on the tomb.

AND NOT ONE WORD OF SORROW is expressed by these newspapers at the death of the Evening Herald. The struggle is all to secure the effects of the corpse.

Very sincerely the American regrets the passing of the Evening Herald. In its day it was an important and powerful newspaper. But of late years it had ceased to fill any field, and its influence was gone. Boston is poorer for its death, and the city has one less watchdog to guard its interests. The American would like to have seen the Evening Herald continued. There is room enough in Boston for every good newspaper here.

And there is no excuse for the GHOULISH SPECTACLE that has disgusted our citizens during the past five or six days.

So far as the American is concerned, this newspaper has made no effort to attract the attention of those who may in the past have read the Evening Herald. The reason is very clear. NEARLY EVERYBODY in Boston now reads the Evening American. Its circulation is larger than the combined circulation of all the other evening newspapers. The Evening American's circulation in Greater Boston alone is 50,000 more than its next highest contemporary claims to print.

We take it that the newspaper readers of Boston are intelligent enough to discriminate among newspapers and select for themselves what they want. That so many newspaper readers prefer the American would seem to prove that this newspaper's news features, cartoons and treatment of public questions generally is heartily approved.

This very brief statement is not to be considered in any sense an attempt on the part of the American to glorify itself. It is simply to record the fact that the passing of a contemporary means something to at least one newspaper. Again the American offers its condolences to the very few steadfast friends, now mourners, who wept at the untimely end of what was once a powerful institution.

Here at Home

By C. B. Quincy

NATURALLY all admirers of the strenuous are gratified to get the guess that Mr. Roosevelt has gone to hunting and has grabbed a couple of fine guns.

The public rejoice that the giraffe is soon to get it in the neck, and that the surly, rhinoceros is to get a few ounces of lead in his coffee.

But while attention is fixed upon the weird animals that roam the trackless jungles in a vain search for a safe deposit vault, the humbler creatures of our own land should not be forgotten.

Here is a New Hampshire hen, for example, which has skilfully solved the problem of bringing the producer and the consumer together.

The ornament of her sex every day, except, of course, Sunday, proceeds to the nearest grocery store and lays an egg in the basket awaiting her there. Then she returns home and cackles to her owner to note one more egg on his bill in the grocery book.

This is an idea that is likely to result in every household having absolutely reliable fresh eggs for breakfast, see what could be simpler than to extend the system? Hens can be trained to fly like carrier pigeons, and every morning in the future one may behold hundreds of them flying rapidly from the farms to the cities, where their triumphant cackles will announce to their customers that fresh eggs await them on the doorstep with their milk and morning papers.

It might even be possible with the aid of Burbank to include fresh vegetables in the same way. Every morning, for instance, a good live potato, for instance, and starting it in the right direction, the potato would deliver itself fresh from the ground to any dumbwaiter in the city.

And if sterner doings claim your attention, there is the Connecticut frog which was accustomed to browse on the farmer's ducks, gumming and sinking them like a submarine. Would it not be easy by judicious feeding on tender ducks, lambs, etc., to make these already large frogs into creatures as monstrous and infinitely more formidable than the Bippopotamus?

Then what a revenue could be collected for hunting licenses, guides, canoes, bearers, camp equipment and all that now brings so much revenue to Africa!

"School Work"

IT is a very pretty lesson that is being taught us by the little girl who has contributed eight cents toward the Hudson-Fulton celebration.

She had seen it stated that the whole amount required to meet the expenses of the celebration would be raised if every inhabitant would contribute seven cents and a half.

In the first place it may be a small thing, but it is suggestive of the character of the girl, that in determining the amount of her gift she gave to the cause the benefit of the half cent, and thus went beyond her proportion of the expense instead of short of it.

She would have been just as near her share had she given seven as she was in giving eight, and it is to be imagined that should she grow up to be a sharp, shrewd business woman, and as calculating as her male competitors, she will forget some of the native generosity of her impulses and keep the half cent herself.

If All Helped, Problems Could Easily Be Solved

But a more important and stimulating feature of the case is her disposition to be a participant in the responsibilities of the occasion and to do her part even though others, much better supplied with money than she probably is, could with perfect ease have paid their share and hers, too.

One is set thinking how many of the difficult problems of our associate life would be solved if every one proceeded on the principle pursued by little Miss Anello, had an individual feeling of the common responsibility, and contributed his per capita quota.

There is nothing needing to be done in the world that could not be done, and done well and easily, if each man, woman and child did his or her proportion of the work.

People who can give eight cents, and who ought to give eight cents, give nothing because somebody else can just as easily give sixteen cents enough for two or sixteen hundred cents.

There are generous wealthy people all through the country that are driven almost to distraction because their known wealth renders them targets to be shot at by every solicitor of benefactions from Oregon to Cape Cod.

There is not a pastor of any wealthy congregation that does not serve his affluent parishioners in the capacity of a lightning rod to draw off from imperilled victims the impending stroke.

And not only in the matter of money, but in all else that is requisite for the public advantage, small Miss Welbert is in the right.

She has exemplified in her own simple way the policy which, if universally adopted, would rescue society and state from a quantity of difficulties, and has been received not only the approval of her own conscience, but also a charming letter of acknowledgment written her by Mr. Sellsman, treasurer of the fund.

School Teacher a Power That Should be Recognized

One cannot be brought face to face with an earnest company of school teachers, numbering 1,500 or 2,000 men and women, such as was recently assembled without having some feeling of the relation which such a body of workers sustains to the future of our city and State, and without feeling how large a place it should occupy in the respect and interest of all classes of our urban population.

The life of a teacher, whether in a primary, grammar or high school, is a hard life, and there should be the assurance on the part of those who teach that the difficulties of their profession are appreciated, and that the qualities of mind and character that fit them to occupy positions of such delicate trust are gratefully and admiringly recognized by people at large.

The weariness, the physical wasting power, of the schoolroom can be understood only by one who has taught, and who has taught for a term of years.

And aside from the matter of physical waste, there is nothing more natural than that there should be a mental waste, a certain amount of intellectual contraction, a falling into grooves, which always means intellectual impoverishment.

It is hard to keep fresh and still be a school teacher. There are what we call the pedagogical lore and the pedagogical mode of thought and expression. This is written with a feeling of utmost respect for the profession.

It is almost inevitable that any worker should take a complexion from the work he does. A clergyman, above all, has to study not to appear clerical.

One's business can generally be told by observing one's gait and hearing him talk. Even one's fallacious will often give one away. Teachers, by herding together, tend to intensify mutually their pedagogical idiosyncrasies.

It is on the same principle that ministers do best by keeping apart from one another as much as possible.

Especially among teachers, and all others who belong to the educated classes, great advantage would accrue from a more general intermingling with those who are differently employed.

Teachers will find it less difficult to retain their freshness and breadth of view if they will maintain closeness of contact with those whose thoughts and interests spread themselves over out-of-school areas, and those whose concern is with out-of-school matters will win just the same advantage by associating with those who are teachers.
